GORMAN'S MOTION

Has Created No End of Talk in Washington.

MR. BROWN ON THE CHINESE BILL.

He Votes Against It and Explains Why—Mr. Clements Congratulated—Georgia News of Interest.

WASHINGTON, September 7.—[Special.]—The appearance of Mr. Gorman in the senate today, moving for a reference of Mr. Scott's Chinese bill to the committee on foreign affairs, is thought here to indicate a serious state of affairs in the cabinet.

Mr. Bayard is a peace-loving man, full of dignity and reserve, and sincerely believes in arbitration and diplomacy, rather than aggressive and abrupt methods of politics in the settlement of public questions. It is hardly necessary, therefore, to say that both the retaliation message and the Scott Chinese bill offended Mr. Bayard's sense of the duties and requirements of this government in the matters indicated. Nevertheless, without consultation with the secretary of state, the retaliation message has been written and the Scott bill, with the president's knowledge and approval, has passed the democratic house of representatives. The result is that Mr. Bayard feels himself affronted, and the report is that he has called at the white house and expressed himself with much emphasis to the president.

He is especially aggrieved at this Chinese business, for the reason that the treaty negotiated by him is still pending, and he feels himself in his official capacity responsible to the Chinese government for the integrity of the position of this government on that subject. This aspect of the case, it is said, is behind Mr. Gorman's motion today. The president is said to have sympathized with Mr. Bayard's somewhat heated present view of the case and to have requested Mr. Gorman to take steps to correct the matter as far as possible.

This is the story current here tonight and it possesses the elements of probability. Certain it is that Mr. Bayard's impatience at the conduct of Mr. Scott is outspoken and undisguised. He deems it a reflection not only upon the administration, but upon the country.

Senator Brown's Vote.

Senator Brown today voted against the passage of the Scott Chinese immigration bill, while Senator Colquitt voted for it.

Senator Brown, while he is opposed to Chinese immigration, thinks too hasty action is being taken upon this matter. He says: "If we abrogate our treaty, it releases the emperor of China from all treaties, and he has the right to drive all Americans out of his domain immediately. The riots in Canton reported in the morning papers point in that direction. If the bill becomes a law, and all Americans are driven out of China, he says, our churches and merchants having interests there will be aroused and make a howl, the end of which we shall not soon hear.

Although the Scott bill is said to have originated at the white house, many now believe, since official information has been received that the Chinese government has not rejected our treaty, that it will be vetoed.

Mr. Clements Congratulated.

Mr. Clements was heartily congratulated by his many friends here today on his renomination. He is a member of the committee on appropriations and chairman of the civil service committee, both prominent positions. Mr. Clements ranks among the very best members of the house. He is an earnest worker and should be retained as long as he desires to remain in congress.

The Fisheries Question.

There was a very small attendance in the house today. The fisheries retaliation business was continued, but interest in the matter seems to lag since there is really no opposition in the house to giving the president the power he asks for. A vote will be taken at four o'clock tomorrow.

The English papers evidently expect a serious outcome from this matter, as two English correspondents arrived here today. One represents the Pall Mall Gazette, while the other is from the European associated press.

A Change of Base.

Mr. Robert Hayden, the Washington correspondent of the Augusta Chronicle, has accepted the managing editorship of the Charlotte Chronicle and will take charge on Monday. The Charlotte paper has recently been purchased by a stock company and Mr. Hayden has secured an interest in it.

Georgia Matters.

The drafts for the addition to the public building in Atlanta will be completed in about fifteen days, when the advertisement for bids for its construction will be published. It has been decided to slightly alter the old building and make it fireproof.

Mr. Clements has secured daily railway mail service on the Chattanooga, Rome and Carrollton railroad, between Chattanooga and Carrollton.

Randolph Ridgely and Sanford E. Moses, of Georgia, have passed the examination at the naval academy, and been admitted as cadets.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Ellis, of Savannah, and Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Battle, of Macon, are here.

Major Barnes returned from Georgia tonight.

Mr. A. J. Gonley, of Augusta, is here.

THE CHINESE QUESTION

Occupies the Time of the Senate—Telegrams From China.

WASHINGTON, September 7.—In the senate the Chinese exclusion bill was taken up, and Mr. Vest, referring to Mr. Dolph's denial of his statement that seven Chinamen had been naturalized in Indianapolis in 1876 under the superintendence of Mr. Miller, law partner of Mr. Harrison, and had voted the republican ticket, read a letter which he had received giving the particulars of such naturalization, and showing that the only mistake he (Vest) had made was in giving the date as 1876 instead of 1880. He also sent to the clerk's desk and had read corroborative affidavits.

He added that instead of it being a fact that no Chinaman had ever been naturalized in the United States, some twenty of them had been naturalized in the state courts in Connecticut, Massachusetts and Indiana, and had been allowed to vote.

Mr. Dolph made the point that the records and documents were not evidence of a naturalization of Chinamen, but only of their declaration of intention. The act of naturalization was one to be performed by the court, while the declaration of intention might be made before a clerk or notary.

Mr. Vest admitted, as a lawyer, that the acts referred to did not constitute naturalization in the legal sense, but he said in Indiana the declaration of intention conferred the right of suffrage.

Mr. Dolph asked Mr. Vest whether there was anything in the affidavits to sustain the statement that Mr. Harrison's law partner had anything to do with naturalization of Chinamen in Indianapolis.

Mr. Vest admitted that there was not. On the contrary, he had learned that neither of the law partners of General Harrison had had anything to do with it.

A MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT.

At this point a message was received from the president of the United States and laid before the senate, inclosing (as the only official information at hand in regard to the Chinese treaty) copies of two telegrams from Mr. Denby, United States minister to Pekin.

The first, dated September 5th, was in these words: "I believe the treaty has been rejected. Demanded from foreign office positive information some days since. No information been yet received."

The second, dated September 6th, was in these words: "Treaty postponed for further deliberation."

THE DISCUSSION PROCEEDS.

After the reading of the message the discussion of the bill proceeded, Mr. Mitchell taking the floor and insisting upon the propriety of passing the bill, even if it were an administration measure. The only criticism he would make upon it was that it did not go far enough. If he had his will he would make the exclusion apply not only to the four hundred million odd Chinamen in China but to those now in the United States.

Mr. Mitchell was speaking rapidly and vehemently when the gavel fell, and the presiding officer put the question, "Shall the bill pass?"

Mr. Gorman rose to speak, but had got no farther than the words: "Mr. President—In the consideration of this measure—" when he was stopped by the announcement on the part of the presiding officer that debate was not in order, unanimous consent having been given yesterday that at one o'clock today a vote should be taken on the question "Shall the bill pass?"

MR. GORMAN'S MOTION.

There being some question as to the terms of the agreement, the report in the Record was read. Mr. Gorman excused himself on the ground that he was not present when the agreement was made and was not aware of it. He now moved that the bill and the president's message be referred to the committee on foreign relations.

Mr. Teller—That is contrary to the arrangement.

The presiding office—The chair holds that the motion is in order and under the rule, notwithstanding the agreement.

The question was taken on Mr. Gorman's motion, and the result was: Yeas, 17; nays, 19. No quorum. Senators Hoar, Platt and Sherman voted with the democrats in the affirmative, and Senators Berry, Payne, Turpie and Vest with the republicans in the negative.

Mr. Morgan had voted "no," but withdrew that vote because he did not know how Mr. Evarts, with whom he was paired, would vote.

On the call of the senate, forty-six senators answered to their names, and the vote was again taken, resulting in the defeat of Gorman's motion; yeas 19, nays 20. Following is the vote in detail:

Yeas—Messrs. Bate, Brown, Call, Cockrell, Coke, Colquitt, Gorman, Gray, Hampton, Harris, Hoar, Jones of Arkansas, Platt, Pugh, Reagan, Sherman, Voorhees, Walthall, Wilson of Maryland.—19.

Nays—Messrs. Aldrich, Berry, Cameron, Cullom, Davis, Dawes, Dolph, Hiscock, Jones of Nevada, Mitchell, Payne, Plumb, Sawyer, Spooner, Stewart Stockbridge, Teller, Turpie, Vest, Wilson of Iowa.—20.

The question was then taken on the passage of the bill, and the result was: Yeas, 37; nays, 3. The negative votes were given by Messrs. Brown, Hoar and Wilson, of Iowa. Mr. Sherman did not vote at all.

Mr. Blair asked the presiding officer whether a motion to reconsider the vote was in order, and on being informed that it was, he submitted that motion. He said that if it were reconsidered, he would move an amendment to the bill, providing that the act shall not take effect until the expiration of sixty days after its passage, unless the pending treaty shall be rejected by China within that time, but to take effect immediately on such rejection.

EFFORTS TO RECONSIDER.

A general political discussion followed Mr. Blair's motion. When it had closed, Mr. Teller moved to lay on the table Mr. Blair's motion to reconsider. The vote resulted, yeas 23, nays 11. No quorum.

A call of the senate having shown the presence of forty-four senators, Mr. Jones, of Arkansas, moved to adjourn.

Mr. Blair—As the vote just taken is plainly indicative of the will of the senate, I do not want to delay action, and I therefore ask leave to withdraw my motion to reconsider.

Mr. Sherman objected.

The vote was taken on the motion to adjourn and it was defeated. Yeas 19, nays 22. The vote was taken the second and third time on the motion to lay on the table the motion to reconsider; but each time there was a lack of a quorum, several senators taking advantage of their being paired to refrain from voting. The following is the vote in detail:

Yeas—Messrs. Aldrich, Bate, Berry, Cameron, Chace, Coke, Cullom, Davis, Dolph, Gray, Harris, Hiscock, Jones, of Nevada; Mitchell, Morgan, Paddock, Payne, Sawyer, Spooner, Stewart, Stockbridge, Teller, Turpie, Vest, Voorhees, Walthall, Wilson, of Maryland—27.

Nays—Messrs. Blair, Brown, Colquitt, Hoar, Reagan, Sherman, Wilson, of Iowa—7.

Finally the friends of the bill realized the uselessness of a further attempt to end the matter, and the senate, at 4 p. m., adjourned till Monday, leaving the bill passed, but a motion to reconsider its passage pending.

Other Matters.

The resolution heretofore offered by Mr. Vest for inquiry into the case of the senate official, McKee, for publishing campaign books, was taken up, and at the suggestion of Mr. Mitchell, was informally laid aside.

Mr. Hoar's resolution offered yesterday calling the attention of the president to previous request of the senate to be furnished with copies of communications to the British government in regard to fisheries, was taken up, and, at the suggestion of Mr. Vest, laid aside informally, Mr. Vest stating his understanding that a message would be received in about half an hour, and he added significantly, "on this subject."

THE HOUSE AT WORK.

The Time Spent in Discussing Politics—All Favor the President's Request.

WASHINGTON, September 7—The house resumed consideration of the retaliation bill.

The entire day was spent in a political debate, with the retaliation bill ostensibly the subject under consideration. Finally it was agreed that a vote on the bill should be taken at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Pending further debate, the house at five o'clock took a recess until eight o'clock, the evening session to be for the consideration of private pension bills.

The principal speakers were Mr. Cannon, of Illinois, on the republican side, and Mr. Hooker on the democratic side. Nobody opposed the bill in the sense of declaring their intention to vote against it. All the republicans, as well as democrats, intended to place in the president's hand the additional power he asked for, while asserting that his power was already complete to do all that was contemplated in the pending bill.

He Attempted to Escape.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., September 7.—[Special.] A negro, whose name could not be learned, was killed at Bessemer today by officers. Deputy Sheriff Burgis had a warrant for the arrest of the negro and went to his house, accompanied by two Bessemer policemen. The negro ran with a double-barreled shotgun in his hand, and when the officers were close on him turned and fired at them. They returned the fire, killing him instantly. The coroner's jury decided the shooting justifiable.

TELEGRAPHIC TAPS.

A flood in New river yesterday carried away the big iron bridge of the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad at Grand View, W. Va., involving a loss of $50,000. A great deal of damage in other quarters is reported.

For the fourth time Cutler, Ind., was the scene of a terrific explosion Thursday night. Dynamite was placed under the postoffice, and that structure was literally blown to atoms. A large quantity of dynamite was found yesterday morning under the hotel, with matches half burned. A strong gale undoubtedly extinguished the matches

Isaac Wooley, one of the proprietors of the Curryville Coal company, at Shelbury, Ind., died suddenly yesterday. A few hours afterward his wife suddenly expired, although she had been apparently well. One of the children is now at death's door from the same mysterious disease.

HE IS ALL RIGHT NOW.

Judge Thurman Has Recovered From His Slight Illness.

WILL SPEAK AT NEW YORK TONIGHT.

Going From There to His Home in Columbus—Good Wishes From All Parts of the Country.

NEW YORK, September 7.—After his sudden illness of Thursday, which prevented his speaking in Madison Square garden, Judge Thurman passed a restful and refreshing night. His son, Allen W. Thurman, who slept in an adjoining room, says he does not think the judge turned over more than two or three times during the night, but that he seemed to enjoy unbroken slumber.

At 10 o'clock the hotel physician, Dr. Goldthwaite, called. He found the judge just awake and willing to sleep longer. The distinguished patient was allowed to sleep, and he did not wake for breakfast until noon.

His two daughters, Mrs. Cowles and Mrs. McCormick, who live near this city, called on him during the day and were present when his breakfast was served. On account of his sickness of last night, he was not permitted to have a heavy meal, but he partook heartily of clam broth and crackers, with no ill result. In fact, he appeared to be in exactly the same condition that any other healthy man would be in after an attack of the same trouble.

Much anxiety has been felt throughout the country regarding the judge's condition, and he is very grateful to the people for their interest in him and wishes it to be explained to them that there is nothing in his condition to excite alarm. He has simply suffered from an attack such as the strongest is liable to, and is now all right.

Judge Thurman received no visitors during the day, although a great many called to pay their respects and express their sympathy with him. Among his callers were warm friends and admirers of all parties, and many expressed their regard by sending up cards with good wishes.

Mrs. Cowles remained during the day, waiting on her father and receiving callers. When she read the news of the day he paid the closest attention, and was willing for a moment to forego his beloved cigar. Thus he spent the afternoon, quietly resting in his room and chatting with members of his family and party, and occasionally enjoying a smoke.

Chairman Brice and Chairman Barnum called on him at a little before seven o'clock, to complete arrangements for the Newark meeting tomorrow night. The judge will leave here at six o'clock and will go on the same car on which he came to New York, direct to the meeting, and from there he will be taken to his home in Columbus, where he wishes to be during the encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic next week.

The judge has been much touched at the interest taken in his condition, and his feeling is one of regret that he was unable to speak last night and thankfulness to the people of the country for their interest and sympathy for him.

Politicians Killed.

BRENHAM, Tex., September 7.—At 10:45 o'clock last night, while several gentlemen were sitting on the doorstep of Murphey's saloon, courthouse square, heavy charges of buckshot were fired into the crowd from the southeast corner of the courthouse, 75 feet distant.

J. O. Hoffman, democratic nominee for county assessor, was instantly killed, and J. H. Holt, brother of O. T. Holt, Texas member of the democratic national committee, and himself an active worker for the same ticket, was dangerously wounded. Holt was struck with twelve buckshot. Hoffman and one other candidate were the only nominees of the democratic party who had not been indorsed by the republicans.

Holt and Hoffman had received warnings that if they didn't keep quiet they would be put out of the way.

Protesting Against Hill.

NEW YORK, September 7.—A mass meeting, at which about twenty-five hundred people were present, was held tonight as a protest against the renomination of David B. Hill. The cheering and hissing was, however, about equally divided. Wheeler H. Peckham presided. Among those announced as vice-presidents were Oswald Ottendorfer, Anson Phelps Stokes, Everett P. Wheeler, Louis F. Post, George Haven Putnam, E. H. Van Ingen and Charles Coudert. Before the speaking began resolutions were read and adopted bearing strongly against the governor. They were addressed, "to the delegates of the democratic party in the state convention assembled."

Prohibition in Arkansas.

ST. LOUIS, September 7.—J. L. Palmer, chairman of the Arkansas prohibition state executive committe, claims that forty counties of Arkansas have gone against license, and says that whisky had a great deal to do with the raid on the ballot boxes at the state capitol. The returns carried away were from precincts which have large prohibition majorities.

For Congress.

PENSACOLA, Fla., September 7.—The republican convention, in session at Marianna, has placed H. R. Benjamin, druggist, of Tampa, in nomination for congress from the first district.

THEY REFUSE TO ACCEPT IT.

The Texas State Capitol is Said to Be Badly Constructed.

CHICAGO, September 7.—A special from Aus'sn, Tex., says:

The state capitol board, consisting of the governor, secretary of state, treasurer, land commissioner and comptroller, yesterday held their final meeting, and unanimously passed a resolution and refused to receive the building, claiming it is not built in accordance with the terms of the contract. It is claimed that the massive copper roofs leak, and there are other serious defects.

Farwell & Taylor, of Chicago, were to receive 3,000,000 acres of land for the building. They have been given a title to all but 300,000 acres. This amount the state holds as a trust until the contract is fully completed, and do not propose to surrender it until the capitol board is satisfied with the work. Litigation will follow, which will be expensive to all concerned.

Murder and Suicide.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., September 7.—[Special.]—A special from Greenville, Tenn., says: Geo. Van Huss, a prominent farmer living near here, was killed today by one of his own laborers named Deford. The men were quarreling about a tobacco barn, when Van Huss received a cut in the arm, from which he bled to death before assistance arrived.

Ella Johnson committed suicide at the Ohio house in this city this morning by taking morphine. She left the following note:

"To the one who reaches me, farewell to this cold world. Some one will please write my father the sad news of my death. His name is F. M. Howell, and his address Oakton, Ky."

The news was telegraphed to Mr. Howell promptly. The deceased came to Chattanooga from Kentucky some time since. No cause is given for the rash act.

Earthquake in Mexico.

CITY OF MEXICO, via Galveston, September 7.—This city was visited last night at 8:44 by a slight earthquake. The oscillations were from northeast to southwest and lasted twenty-four seconds. At Oriziba the earthquake lasted nine seconds. No damage was done. State of Guerrero advices are that the earthquake shocks lasted fifteen seconds. The oscillations were from the west to east. Heavy rains are reported in the west and north.

ANY BAGGING WILL DO.

So Say the Cotton Men of the National Marine Underwriters' Association.

NEW YORK, September 7.—The board of managers of the New York cotton exchange today received the following communication:

THE NATIONAL BOARD OF MARINE UNDERWRITERS, 25 William Street, New York, September 7.—New York Cotton Exchange: Gentlemen—In view of the present agitation of the bagging question throughout the south, the cotton underwriters of this board, at their meeting today, passed the following resolution:

WHEREAS, It having become known to the cotton underwriters of the national board of marine underwriters, that for a portion of this season's crop certain changes in the style of covering for the bales might be adopted, and that an expression of their intentions in view of the possible change was desired; be it

Resolved, That the cotton underwriters of this board will make no discrimination against cotton covered with any light-weight, close-woven material of reasonable strength, provided the difference in weight between the material used and good quality bagging be compensated by extra bands (say 8 or 9 to the bale instead of 5 or 6), and that the sample holes be effectually covered.

As our previous communication to you indicates, it is the belief of the committee investigating this subject that to a large extent the appalling losses by fire during the past seasons have been due to the bagging used in covering the bales, and that flimsy, loose-woven cloth with the fibre standing out from the surface is as inflammable as the cotton itself. A change, therefore, to any woven materia cannot, in their opinion, involve additional risk. It is also apparent that changes in the style of covering and binding could be introduced at a very slight additional cost, that would render fire in American cotton as rare as with India and Egyptian.

The committee believe that the use of a close woven burlap 19 ounces or 1 pound to the yard, or what is styled hop sacking, 24 ounces or 1½ pounds to the yard, or their equivalent, with two or three additional bands, and with care used to thoroughly cover the bale, would bring immunity from a large portion of the loss by fire and relieve the industry from a very serious tax which is involved in the fire and marine insurance rates as now charged.

This subject would seem of sufficient importance to receive the attention of any convention that might be held of those interested in the cotton industry.

If a change and improvement in the method of covering and pressing is not made, it is quite possible that that the underwriters will, by combined action, withdraw from the business. Respectfully, by order of the chairman, W. I. COMES, Vice-President.

THE INDIANA WHITE CAPS.

Attorney-General Michener Tells of the Outrages and Suggests a Remedy.

INDIANAPOLIS, September 7.—Early in August Governor Gray addressed an open letter to Attorney-General Michener, requesting him to visit Crawford county and investigate the white cap outrages.

Attorney-General Michener today made his report. He details the result of his investigation in Crawford county, enumerating the criminal suits pending against fourteen members of the white cap organization, none of whom have been convicted.

He points out that the local courts and officers must have the co-operation and support of the law-loving people of Crawford county before the convictions can be secured, and says: "I regret to say that I do not find such general sentiment as must exist before there can be successful prosecution of cases which may be brought in the future, no matter how conclusive the evidence may be. The condition of affairs is not only deplorable but alarming."

After relating the cold blooded character of the numerous white cap outrages and the extent of the organization in Crawford and Perry counties, the attorney-general asserts that the local newspapers have but little to say in disapproval of the outrages, and before there can be an indictment and successful prosecution of these offenders there must be considerable change in public sentiment. He believes this change can be produced, and unless it is brought about a general insurrection is likely to follow and the governor will be compelled to suppress it with military power.

The attorney-general says that as a result of the reign of terror existing in Crawford county, there has been recently organized a body known as "black caps" and it is said they place armed men each night on the roads in the region most infested by the white caps with instructions to fire upon the latter. He concludes his report by suggesting that the governor appoint assistant counsel to prosecute the cases, and that such counsel should be present with the prosecuting attorney in the grand jury room when the witnesses are examined. That if possible, newspapers in Crawford county be induced to denounce the white cap outrages, and demand the enforcement of law. He also suggests that Governor Gray attend in person the October term of Crawford circuit court while the grand jury is in session, and thus give the people to understand and realize that there is a force outside of that county which can be used if necessary to secure the enforcement of the law and volunteers to lend such influence as by virtue of his office he may possess by accompanying the governor, believing that such visit would create and arouse a public sentiment which would be productive of great good.

THE BUSINESS OUTLOOK.

Dun & Co.'s Weekly Circular Shows a Steady Improvement.

NEW YORK, September 7.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s review of trade for the week says:

The wool and iron industries respond at last, though with some hesitation yet, to the stimulus afforded by good crop prospects. The news of the week as to grain and cotton has been at the most uniformly favorable, in spite of some excess of rain in parts of the south, and alarm about possible frosts in the northwest.

The foreign demand for products, though slow, is improving.

An increased demand for wool is shown in the higher prices for nearly all grades.

Coates's circular for September 1st reports considerable speculative feeling, and the average of 108 quotations is now 22.7 cents against 21.7 August 1st. While many manufacturing works are still idle and the advance in raw material is largely based on the belief that the clip is much below last year's, there has been distinct improvement in the purchasing by manufacturers and in dress and knit goods more activity. The demand for cotton goods is at present comparatively light and irregular, but the belief that no change of the tariff will occur this year removes the chief cause of uncertainty in manufacturers.

In the iron trade an improving demand is felt in all directions excepting in the market for steel rails. Pig iron is firmer here, and though some southern iron is still offered below current quotations, and four new southern furnaces are to begin work this month, the tone is firmer. At Pittsburg, advances of twenty-five to fifty cents per ton are reported. Bar and other finished iron is stronger there and at Philadelphia, and some speculative disposition in the pig iron market is noticed. Cleveland also reports an improved demand for ore and better prices. It is doubted whether much advance in raw iron is practicable until rails are in better demand. Deliveries of steel rails for eight months of this year have been only 710,502 tons, against 1,045,048 last year, but in other branches of trade the demand and feeling have clearly improved.

The stock market has shown an upward tendency and in spite of some activeness of late shows an advance of about half a dollar per share since a week ago. Reports from New York fall $1,200,000 behind last year's for the last week reported, and 14 per cent behind for the past five weeks, so that further excess of imports over exports is indicated. Accounts from the interior cities continue decidedly favorable, differing from each other mainly in rate or extent of improvement in the trade. As to collections, also, while some complaints appear, the general tenor of the reports is more favorable. Increased demand for money has caused some closeness in the market at Baltimore, Cleveland and Nashville, but at most points the supply is ample and the demand moderate. The treasury has taken in during the week two millions more than it has paid out, but the payments for $6,000,000 bonds purchased have not yet been reported.

The business failures occurring throughout the country during the last week number, for the United States, 194; Canada, 30. Total, 224, against 226 last week.

The Executive Committee.

The regular meeting of the executive committee of the Jacksonville Auxiliary Sanitary association was held today, President McQuaid presiding. Members of the executive committee presens were P. McQuaid, W. A. MacDuff, J. M. Schumacher, P. Ed McMurray and C. G. Elliott, also Acting Mayor D. F. Gerow and other visitors.

Mr. J. M. Schumacher, on behalf of the finance committee, reported new contributions as follows: Brown & Nucomb, for green fruit trade, $500; Henry Fisk & Sons, $500; Phoenix Insurance company, New York, $250; R. Waltger Tavares, $25; residents of Pilottown, $43; Naumberry, Kraus, Lauer & Co., $500; Orlando Daily Record, from citizens of Orlando, $203; H. S. Williams, Rockledge, $10; Thomasville, Ga., "Enterprise," $100; J. A. Leslie, $10; A. Debary, $100; Marx Brothers, $5; William Payne, Janesville, Wis., $50; Hall & Puckett, New York, $100; John Kay, $5; N. C. Pettit, $10; James W. Fitzgerald, $25.

The report of the committee on sanitation being called for, a communication from Dr. Henry was read announcing the sickness of Chairman H. A. Lengle, and the proffer of the services of Dr. J. C. Lengle to fill the vacancy. Upon motion, the corresponding secretary was instructed to gratefully accept Dr. Lengle's services.

Judge Jones, chairman, stated that the relief committee was now distributing their supplies from a commissary instead of from retail stores. Mr. McMurray, of the committee on conference, said that the board of health had no meeting yesterday, but he would refer the matters to them today.

Letters from G. C. Matthews and from Dr. W. W. Black, introduced by R. H. Jones, of Atlanta, were read and referred to the conference committee for transmission to the board of health. Mr. McMurray also reported on behalf of the special committee appointed to meet with the city council by invitation, that the committee had presented a historical summary of the the organization and work of this association as a body auxiliary to the constituted authority, and explained the position of the committee in reference to the appeal for aid. After some remarks of a general character, the city council unanimously ratified all the acts of this association.

Mr. W. A. MacDuff reported progress in the matter of establishing a camp, and upon motion, the committee of which he is chairman was charged with the duty of considering and recommending a feasible method of furnishing houses.

THE MATTER OF FUMIGATION.

Postmaster H. W. Clark warmly eulogized the value of the daily papers in making known the condition of this city and her people to the outside world, stated the difficulties, financial and otherwise, in the way of continuing publication, and proposed a resolution which he thought would assist in relieving the papers by doing away with the prejudice existing by explaining the operations of the fumigating station.

Messrs. T.T. Stockton, and Editor E. M. Martin, of the Tim-Union, stated that the company they represent are desirous of doing its full duty in the face of necessary loss, and desired the assistance of the committee to enable them to avail themselves of resources from willing subscribers, who are prevented by health authorities from receiving their papers. The appreciation of the committee for the good work done by the newspapers was indicated by the hearty remarks by President McQuaid, Mr. Schumacher, and others, and the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That this association requests a conference between the presidents of the Duval county board of health, Putnam county board of health, and St. Johns county board of health, with a view of making an inspection of the government fumigation station at this point, that there may be no further delay in the transmission of newspaper mail through a misunderstanding on the part of outside counties.

The president was authorized to make necessary arrangements. Postmaster Clark detailed the work of the fumigation station, and stated that after the first three days, during which time the mails were fumigated only when directed to stations demanding it, large packages of paper which could not be opened were nevertheless thoroughly fumigated by opening the wrappers.

President McQuaid read a telegram from the Cincinnati chamber of commerce, stating that a subscription would be started for their relief; also from President Ingraham, of the South Florida railway, which stated that counties south would allow tents to be transported if properly packed and fumigated, and from the president of the state board of health of Louisiana, saying that he would supply experienced nurses at $3 a day and transportation, and from General Manager Harrahan and W. D. Chipley, giving free transportation to nurses with proper certificate, and stated that Dr. Mitchell, by his advice, had requested the services of thirty nurses; from H. R. Duval, offering the New York office of the F. R. & D. as a depot of supplies; from Major J. H. Durke, offering his services in connection therewith, both of which had been accepted; from Secretary Thos. F. Wood, of Wilmington, N. C., saying he is trying to locate refugees, and that Murphy would receive 100 more if tents were furnished; from the mayor of Saluda, N. C., extending a welcome to refugees; from R. F. Powell, Pale Springs, Tenn., putting the accommodation at 100 now and 100 more soon; from Boniqua, Tenn., ten cottages can be used; from Gailbraith Springs, Tenn.; also the following telegrams from Senator Pasco and President Grover Cleveland:

WASHINGTON, September 6.—J. M. Fairlie, Jacksonville, Fla.: Have seen the president and surgeon-general. If arrangements can be made to receive refugees at Louisville, and to pass through Alabama and Tennessee restrictions will be removed. Colonel Duval is here and will communicate with Superintendent Maxwell and try to perfect arrangements.
S. PASCO.

FROM PRESIDENT CLEVELAND.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, WASHINGTON, September 6. To T. M. Fairlie, Jacksonville, Fla.: Senator Pasco has shown me your dispatch and I have had a consultation with Dr. Hamilton. While the government is anxious to do everything possible within its power to help the people of Jacksonville in their great calamity, I hope they will recognize the necessity of the exercise of caution to prevent the spread of the disease to other places, thus involving the safety of the people in all parts of the state and country. The defects at Camp Perry will be remedied at once. I hope the establishment of the other camp will be pushed as rapidly as possible. With your co-operation, each camp can be made to answer the purpose of its creation, and the character of those sent to Camp Perry on their way north can be changed. Is the establishment of a free dispensary at Jacksonville advised? Everything will be done to the limit of our power to help in the best and most reasonable way.
(Signed) GROVER CLEVELAND.

President McQuaid stated that he had received no answer from Surgeon-General Hamilton to his requisition sent two days ago.

Acting Mayor Gerow stated that he had heard definitely that Mayor Smith would not be back, and that he would open an office and make arrangements to perform his duty in his capacity as acting mayor, and read several telegrams notifying him of contributions of money, which will be acknowledged with the other funds by the finance committee.

THE CENSUS.

Chairman C. W. Stansell, of the special committee on census, presented the following report:

Total number of adults, white, 2,889.
Total number of children, white, 1,056.
Total number of adults, colored, 6,377.
Total number of children, colored, 3,435.
Total number of white 3,945.
Total number of colored 9,812.
Total number of people in city 13,757.
Total number of people willing to leave city 1,491.
Total number of people unwilling to leave city 10,375.
Total number who will go to camp 297.
Total number who refused to say whether they would go or not 1,644.
Total number of people with means 3,365.
Total number of people without means 8,995.
Total number of people who refused to say whether they had means or not 139.

OTHER MATTERS DISCUSSED.

Mr. J. M. Schumacher gave notice of an amendment to the articles of association by the addition of a new standing committee, to be called the committee on "historical and sanitary statistics."

Mr. Edwin Martin called attention to the press reports of the statement of Surgeon-General Hamilton in reference to Camp Perry and the impression made thereby upon President Cleveland, and moved that a special committee be appointed by the chair to publish a statement of the facts in answer to General Hamilton, and send a copy to President Cleveland. After some pertinent remarks by Messrs. Schumacher, Gerow and McQuaid, the motion was adopted and the president appointed J. M. Schumacher, Acting Mayor Gerow and Dr. Neal Mitchell, of the board of health, such committee.

A Generous Offer.

From H. C. Minor, of New York, came the following offer:

Neal Mitchell, President Board of Health: I propose to send corps of trained hospital nurses and pay their salaries and expenses out of my own pocket. Can you give them proper accommodations, and how many do you require?
(Signed) H. C. MINOR.

To this Dr. Mitchell replied:

H. C. Minor, New York: Very grateful for your offer. Will a request for ten acclimated nurses be asking too much?
(Signed) NEAL MITCHELL, President Board of Health.

Convalescent.

The following patients are reported as discharged and cured: Misses M. and A. Cameron, two children of A. J. Travis, H. E. Neil, Horace Avery, Bessie Roberts, Mary Brewster, Miss Maggie Jordan, William Green, Miss Hattie Kidd, George Robertson, all in the city; J. E. Smith, Claude Smith, Ed Madison, colored, W. E. Ford, telegraphic operator Savannah, Florida and Western railroad; and James Harper, fireman; all from Sandhills hospital. Robert Screven, Louis Pelton and Henry Young were discharged yesterday, and H. J. Williams discharged from St. Luke's hospital.

Colonel J. J. Daniel is improving. Dr. Leonard still continues quite ill. A. W. Cockrell, Jr., is convalescent.

The Exact Situation.

The total number of people, both white and black, at present in the city is a surprise to many, as it had been predicted that the number would exceed 16,000. Of the 10,375 reported as unwilling to leave the city, a great majority are negroes who do not have great fears of fever and who prefer to remain here where they will be fed at the public expense. The number of whites unwilling to leave are mostly those who, like newspaper men, see no alternative but to stay and fight it out.

An analysis of this report reveals the fact, therefore, that only about 1,500 people are seeking a refuge outside the state. This simplifies the question of accommodations in the mountain towns of North Carolina and other states willing to receive them, for the number of people is not in excess of the accommodations already offered. Of the 3,365 who have means, it may safely be estimated that the greater portion are unwilling to go at present—at least not until the risk of remaining is greater than it is now.

From General Hamilton.

From Surgeon-General Hamilton Dr. Mitchell received the following today:

I renew the suggestion made to you at Camp Perry that the Red Cross association be invited to establish headquarters in Jacksonville, which they will do immediately if asked, with acclimated nurses and agents. Dr. Guiteras, of the marine hospital service, who is to be relieved from Camp Perry, will report to you on Monday for such duty as you may have for him during the remainder of the epidemic. A dispensary will be opened by this service, and will furnish free medicines for the poor on certified prescriptions if you wish it. Surgeon Hutton will take command at Camp Perry, and is now engaged in the work of enlarging it, according to orders heretofore given him. Railroad houses are being supplied as fast as possible to be used instead of tents.
[Signed] HAMILTON, Surgeon-General.

Surgeon-General Hamilton's Statement.

WASHINGTON, September 7.—The following is self-explanatory:

P. McQuaid, President Citizens' Auxiliary Committee, Jacksonville, Fla.: Your telegram to Senator Call received and carefully considered. Train through Live Oak was stopped because of my knowledge of the action of the state authorities of Tennessee. The following telegram just received shows the correctness of my opinion:

NASHVILLE, September 6.—John B. Hamilton, Surgeon-General: Unless refugees have been in camp for ten days, baggage disinfected, and each hold your certificate of health, they will not be admitted to state. Augusta agreement is approved.
[Signed] J. D. PLUNKETT, President State Board of Health.

I will see that arrangements are made for transportation in cars under government supervision of

Bartow county presents the unusual sight of an empty jail. The doors and windows of the prison were thrown open yesterday and the building given an airing. The Cartersville Courant-American says that old citizens say it is the first time in the history of the county that such a thing has happened. This is a remarkably good showing for a county containing 29,000 and a city of 3,000 inhabitants. How many counties in Georgia can show an empty jail?

The Meriwether Vindicator says that Mr. Joe S. Smith, near Jones's mills, has a number of goats. Last Saturday morning, after a very heavy rain, one of the colored hands came in and said he expected the goats in the branch pasture were drowned, as he heard considerable bleating down there. Mr. Smith, going down to examine, found two of the flock washed up against the fence, their fore feet on the rails and heads above the water. Another was perched on a pile of floating trash, and all were making the welkin ring with their cries. Letting off the water ponded against the fence rescued the goats from their peril.

"Let the cotton growers get together and, with meaning and in good earnest, resolve that they will hold their cotton, selling no more than is absolutely necessary to meet their actual wants and necessities, and in doing this much, let them hypothecate with their bankers or factors sufficient of their cotton to secure a direct importation of foreign bagging for the present or incoming crop. I am satisfied that under such an arrangement foreign bagging, India bagging especially, can be obtained for about what the farmers have heretofore been paying for the bagging. Let our farmers remember how they lived and economized during the war, and adopt the same heroic and self-supporting economy. Let them remember that this bagging combine is no less a war against their interest than was our late civil war, and let them meet it with the same spirit and determination as they did in those trying days, and victory will surely crown their efforts.

THE GOOSE FARM.

Putting the Geese to Work in the Cotton Fields.

From the Griffin, Ga., News.

The readers of the news will remember the authentic account of Nick Willis's goose farm, recently published in these columns. A gentleman who has just returned from Hatchachubbee, Alabama, where the farm is situated was in our sanctum yesterday, and told the following ingenious scheme by which the geese are made useful while being fattened through the summer. He said:

"While I was in Alabama I thought I would like to see the famous goose farm, of which I had read in the News. When nearing the place, I saw the proprietor driving two or three hundred geese from a branch to a cotton patch.

"'For heaven's sake,'" said I, "'what is it you have on the necks of those geese?'"

"'Those are gourds full of water. I drive the geese into that cotton patch and keep them there all day weeding out the cotton. There is no water in the cotton patch, and I have to give them water in this way to keep them there. Those geese will weed out more cotton in a day than two people would. They will eat the grass and weeds, but they won't touch the cotton.'"

"'But how do they get the water out of the gourds under their necks?'"

"'They drink out of each other's gourd. Each gourd has an opening on the side, so that another goose can put his bill into the gourd and drink. If you will stay here long enough you will see it for yourself.'"

"I waited there half a day to see the performance, and finally I saw it. The geese did exactly as the man said they would. When a goose got thirsty, he walked up to his neighbor and coolly drank out of the gourd on his neck."

"When asked if he had yet made a crop with the help of the geese he replied that he made a small crop last year, but only used a limited number of geese, as he was only experimenting. This year he has over two thousand geese in harness, and they have succeeded in keeping his crop cleaned out so far. He has one hundred acres under cultivation, and says that he will make the best crop he has ever made.

"When asked how he came to think of using the geese as farm hands, he replied that two years ago he had a small patch of cotton near his house. In this patch the geese raised about his yard were allowed to run. He noticed that the cotton had little or no grass and no weeds at all, and began to watch the geese. He found that they literally ate every weed and every blade of grass, but they did not touch the cotton. Finding how valuable they were for this purpose, he resolved to try them on a larger scale, and is delighted with his experiment. His neighbors have paid close attention to the matter, and next year they will each of them start a large number of geese harness in their cotton crops. If the farmer's experiment is as successful as he thinks it will be, it is only a question of a few years until the whole cotton crop of Alabama will be weeded out by the ordinary farm goose."

SAVANNAH, Ga., September 7.—[Special.]—Mr. J. H. Adams is the first theatrical advance man to get in Savannah this season. He is ahead of Carrie Tutein's company, playing "Struck Gas." The company will open the Savannah theater next Tuesday night, and will repeat the piece Wednesday night.

POLITICS IN GEORGIA.

A democratic primary election was held in Talbot county yesterday for representative and county officers. Nine precincts give S. Maxwell 438 and M. W. Hollis 147 for representative. There was a close vote for county officers. T. N. Beall probably defeated L. A. Baldwin, the present treasurer, by a small majority. The balance of the county officers were renominated.

There are three candidates for the legislature in Cobb county, and, as only two can be elected one will be left. Hon. A. S. Clay, of Marietta, who has served two terms, and T. J. Hardage, of Powder Springs, are the regular nominees of the democratic party. J. C. Sanges, a Knight of Labor, is running as an independent.

COLUMBUS CHRONICLES.

Fighting the Bagging Trust—A Lady Shoots at a Burglar.

COLUMBUS, Ga., September 6.—[Special.]—There is an evident intention among the farmers here to resist the bagging trust. Today cotton was received packed both in India bagging and sheeting. What the result of these experiments will be cannot yet be foreseen.

George Washington, a negro lad, was arrested here today, charged with robbing Mr. Parkman, of Chattahoochee county, of $15. He had only fifteen cents on his person and had spent the balance for clothing and cheap jewelry.

Every one in Columbus knows where the old Columbus and Western freight depot is. On account of its inconvenient location it has not for years past been used for railroad purposes, but certain conditions make it necessary that the railroad company should see that it is occupied. In keeping with this condition the depot building is used by the family of Mr. Stribling as a place of residence, the offices being used as bedrooms, parlor etc.

Last night about 12 o'clock Mrs. Stribling heard some one trying to open the shutters to one of the windows, and, seeing that it was a burglar trying to effect an entrance, fired three shots at him. The burglar ran, and it is not known whether either of the shots took effect.

Last night at the Methodist church, in Troy, Ala., Mr. Oscar Benton and Miss Alva Thomas were united in marriage, the ceremony being performed by Rev. W. S. Wade. The bride and groom each have many friends in this city who entertain for them the best wishes.

Yesterday morning, at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nicholson, in Chattahoochee county, Professor J. J. Gordy, of Stewart county, and Miss Ida Nicholson were united in marriage, Rev. Mr. McMichael, of Cusseta, officiating. Professor Gordy is a brother to Mrs. L. A. Scharboro, of this city.

THE FOURTH GEORGIA SURVIVORS.

Appointment of Executive Committee—Story of the Flag.

LAGRANGE, Ga., September 7.—[Special.]—At the meeting of the survivors of the Fourth Georgia regiment held in this city on the 5th, the following new executive committee was appointed:

Company A, Captain B. Curly; company B, J. J. Ware; company C, S. Tharpe; company D, D. O. Robinson; company E, W. H. Gilbert; company F, S. T. Cantrell; company G, Robert Childs; company H, Joseph Staby; company I, F. T. Snead; company K, M. Speer.

Mr. J. J. Ware, of this city, was appointed custodian of the battle flag for the year. This flag was never captured during the entire war.

There is a nice little story connected with this flag. Mr. James F. Murphy was color bearer, and at the battle of the Wilderness he was shot down. When he fell he pulled the flag from the staff and thrust it into his bosom. He was taken by the federals, but kept the flag hidden. In a short time he was recaptured by the confederates. Mr. J. J. Ware was one of the color guards and secured and carried the flag, and afterwards turned it over to General Doles. Some time ago Mrs. Doles presented the flag to the regiment, and now, after twenty-three years, Mr. Murphy yesterday turned the tattered flag over to Mr. Ware, and it is safe to say that he is the happiest man in Georgia.

KINGSTON'S PROGRESS.

A Building and Loan Association—A New Bridge.

KINGSTON, Ga., September 7.—[Special.]—J. M. Anderson, one of our most enterprising and popular merchants, has formed a building and loan association within himself. He has built several houses; some are in process of erection, while a good many will be built during the fall and winter. Wish we had a few more such enterprising gentlemen in our midst.

The town council has had erected over our public wells neat coverings. It certainly has been a long felt want.

The amount of rain that has fallen the last few days and that which is still falling is beginning to assume alarming proportions. The farmers are feeling the excess of rain now as much as the dearth of it was felt several weeks ago. A great deal of fodder has been ruined in the fields. The potato and turnip crops are an assured success.

The lumber is now being hauled daily for the building of the bridge across Two Run creek, which flows along the outskirts of the town. It will be a great convenience when finished.

AUGUSTA AFFAIRS.

The River Still Rising—A Social Club Disbands, Etc.

AUGUSTA, Ga., September 7.—[Special.]—The Savannah river continued to rise today, but is about at a standstill tonight at 27 feet. The high water will do considerable damage to crops in the river swamp lands below Augusta, but will not come into the city by several feet.

L'Allegro club sold out its furniture and other effects at auction tonight among its members. It was a social organization, but its membership was principally composed of members of the St. Valentine and the Commercial club, and they decided the third organization an unnecessary one. The social field will be well covered by these two, and L'Allegro club will disband.

The negro republicans called a meeting tonight to nominate a candidate for the legislature, but it was a dismal failure, not two dozen men being present.

DAMAGED BY THE FLOOD.

Rice Planters Sustain Loss by the Incessant Rain.

SAVANNAH, Ga., September 7.—[Special.]—In a few days, if the existing circumstances continue, a flood may be expected all along the Savannah river. It is almost impossible to prophesy as to whether the damage inflicted will be great or not. Last year the flood was extremely severe, and the consequent loss almost ruined many rice planters. As there had been no heavy rains this season up to the beginning of this month they were hoping for a fine harvest that would tend to somewhat compensate them for previous losses. Now, however, there is a prospect of their anticipations being knocked into a cocked hat.

FLOATING IN THE RIVER.

The Dead Body of a Man Picked Up by a Steamer's Crew.

SAVANNAH, Ga., September 7.—[Special.]—Coroner W. D. Dixon learned today that the body which was picked up in the river yesterday was Hamilton Johnson's. William Nelson, a deck hand on the steamer David Clark, said that on Tuesday about dark Johnson and some other boat hands were sitting on the outside rail, when it gave way and Johnson fell overboard. The steamer was going down the river, and was then opposite Fort Oglethorpe. A small boat was lowered, but Johnson had gone down and did not come up again while the boat remained around. Johnson was about twenty-five years old. Captain Usina corroborated the above statement, and added that Johnson had been employed on the Clark for three years. His home was in Savannah, where he has a mother and brothers.

South Carolina's Freshet.

COLUMBIA, S. C., September 7.—[Special.]—Last night the Congaree river rose fifteen feet, overflowed its banks and inundated thousands of acres of cotton and corn lands. For ten days it has rained here daily. The wet weather has prevented the opening of cotton, and has rotted the fibre in the pod. It is still raining, and cotton buyers estimate that if it continues 25 per cent of the crop will be lost. It is the first time in many years that a freshet has occurred at this season, and it is very disastrous. The rivers did not begin rising until last night. This evening a steamer could pass over the lands where cotton and corn were growing yesterday. Tonight the Congaree is twenty feet above low water, and rising. The Broad and the Saluda rivers are also up. The damage will reach over a million.

A Good Story Old as Sin Itself.

NEWS FROM MACON.

The Happenings in the Central City.

Preparations for the State Fair—The Negroes Dissatisfied With the Coroner's Verdict in the Williams Case.

MACON, Ga., September 7.—[Special.]—The board of trade committee—Messrs. L. E. Culver, R. F. Burden and J. C. Bannon—and Secretary R. A. Nisbet, of the agricultural society, made another canvass among the merchants today for subscriptions to the $1,000 fund to be used in advertising the state fair in the Georgia papers. The committee collected $358.00 today, which, added to $318.50 collected yesterday, make a total of $676.50 in two days, and not half of the merchants have been seen. The $1,000 will be readily forthcoming.

Secretary Nisbet is busily engaged today sending checks to country papers to pay for advertising the fair. The weekly papers will only have three or four more issues before the fair.

Mr. W. T. Harbaum writes from New York that he will bot be able to attend the state fair races at Macon this year. The northern races will not close in time to permit him to get here. A state fair without Bill Harbaum will appear singular indeed.

Congressman Blount writes that he will let Secretary Nisbet know in a few days definitely as to the intentions of Speaker Carlisle and Hon. Frank Hurd in regard to attending the fair.

In response to heavy demands, a large lot of premium lists were mailed today by Assistant Secretary Jemison to all parts of the state. Judging by the inquiries for premium lists, the exhibits will be mammoth.

The chicken men are delighted at the arrangement made to have the Columbus exposition poultry exhibit transferred to the State fair. As information to the many desiring to know the rules of the poultry department at the State fair, they are appended below. The display will be made under the auspices of the Georgia State Poultry and Bench association.

1. No fee will be charged for entries, coops or feed and attention to exhibits, and premiums are open to competition from any state or section.

2. A breeding pen shall consist of one male and four females.

3. The latest revised American standard of perfection will govern the judge in all varities recognized.

4. No first prize shall be awarded a specimen that does not score ninety points or over; and no breeding pen shall receive a first prize unless every specimen thereof scores ninety points or over.

5. No second prize shall be awarded a specimen that does not score eighty-five points or over; and no breeding pen shall receive a second prize unless every specimen thereof scores eighty-five points or over.

6. All entries not disqualified shall be scored, and a copy of the score card furnished the exhibitor.

7. All birds must be shown in their natural condition, except games and game bantams, which must be dubbed. Any violation of this rule or plucking of feathers will exclude the specimen from competing,

8. Any specimen not strictly the property of the exhibitor will be excluded from competing.

9. In awarding the premium for the best display of poultry, each first prize specimen will count three points; each second prize specimen, two points; and each specimen, not a prize winner, scoring eighty-five points or over, one point; but in no case shall the same specimen be counted twice—that is, in breeding pen and single specimen. The exhibit scoring the highest number of points under this rule will be awarded the display prize.

10. Competent judges have been selected to award the premiums, and no protest will be entertained from any exhibitor unless signed by a majority of exhibitors in that class. No judge shall be a competitor in a variety where his decision is to be given. If collusion, direct or indirect, is ascertained between exhibitors and judge, the specimens referred to will be, without further action, excluded from competition. Any person attempting to interfere with the judge in his decision, by letter or otherwise, will be excluded from competition.

IN A DISTRESSED CONDITION.

A Sick Man From Florida is Granted Admission to Roff Home.

MACON, Ga., September 7.—[Special.]—Today a sick white man, claiming to be from Orlando, Florida, applied to Rev. Dudley Powers, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, for aid. He said he was an Episcopalian, but when questioned as to the name of the rector and church at Orlando, was unable to give them. Rector Powers says, whether the man is an Episcopalian or not, he is in the last stages of consumption and is rapidly approaching his end. He states that he has not been in Florida for some time, and is not a yellow fever refugee. He has been slowly making his way from town to town, applying for shelter and assistance, but no town would take him in and care for him. The authorities of each place would give him a free railroad pass to some other point, and thus he has progressed. He applied to Rector Powers for help and received some money to engage him some place to stop and get something to eat until Mr. Powers could see Clerk Smith, of the county commissioners, and try and get him to give the consumptive admission to Roff home. The Roff home was built solely for the sick and poor of Bibb county, and is not intended as an asylum for the unfortunates of other counties and states. Rector Powers says if the man is turned away from Roff home and sent his way it will be equivalent to sending him to his death.

Clerk Smith granted the permit to him to go to the Roff home.

HIGHLY ENCOURAGED.

H. I. Kimball Well Pleased With His Visit to Macon.

MACON, Ga., September 1.—[Special.]—Messrs. H. I. Kimball, of Atlanta, and John H. Bryant, of the Consolidated Refrigerating company, (automatic) of New York, went to Atlanta last evening, after spending several days in Macon on business connected with establishing a refrigerating company at Macon. They expressed themselves as highly delighted with the outlook in this city for the successful introduction of the automatic refrigerator here.

The machinery for the plant has already been shipped and is expected to reach here in a few days. The Macon plant will cost fifty thousand dollars. It will be located on Second street, next to Turner & McGregor's carriage repository on Second street. Messrs. J. W. and Ed. Burke, J. W. Cabaniss and William Fleming are the Maconites in the company, which is a good guarantee of the solidity and reliability of the concern.

Messrs. Kimball and Bryant, while in Macon, expressed themselves as greatly disappointed at not being able to locate a plant at Jacksonville in time to stamp out the yellow fever by freezing, which they are confident could have been done successfully. There are quite a number in Macon ready to try the automatic refrigerator as soon as the plant gets in operation.

NOT SATISFIED.

The Coroner's Verdict in the Earnest Williams Case Arouses the Negroes.

MACON, Ga., September 7.—[Special.]—It is said that a warrant will be issued for the arrest of Dan Lucas, charging him with the murder of Earnest Williams. If the warrant is taken will Lucas be taken? That is the question.

A person well acquainted with Lucas says that Lucas would not fear conviction in the least if he is arraigned for the crime, but Lucas does not care to be arrested now and lodged in jail indefinitely. It is said that if the grand jury should find a true bill against Lucas he would send word to the solicitor-general to set a day for trial, and he would certainly make his appearance on that day at court, stand trial and not be afraid of its results.

It is said that the colored people are very indignant about the verdict and propose having a public meeting to condemn the action of the jury and call upon the solicitor-general to investigate the killing thoroughly and present it before the grand jury and have the proper person or persons arraigned before the bar of justice to answer for the murder. The negroes say the killing was murder, and no lighter grade of offense could apply to the case.

TWENTY-FIVE PER CENT.

Part of the Proceeds for the Benefit of Yellow Fever Sufferers.

MACON, Ga., September 7.—[Special.]—The inimitable Ed L. Brown, of Savannah, has been engaged to take part in the grand concert to be given on September 11th for the benefit of the First street Methodist church. Ed alone will be worth the price of admission. His songs and acting are excellent, and will be a delightful feature of the splendid programme provided for the occasion, to be rendered by Macon's best musical talent. The concert is under the direction of Messrs. Dryfus, Clancy and S. A. C. Everett, and they are doing all in their power to make the entertainment pleasant and a fine success.

The management has agreed to devote 25 per cent of the proceeds to the benefit of the yellow fever sufferers, and this cause, independent of the church, is sufficient to insure a large audience. The pastors of the different churches might do well on Sunday next to announce from their pulpits the objects of the concert. There is a large demand for tickets. All who desire to sell tickets can apply to Mr. H. C. Tindall.

A. Engleith, the new agent of the Central at Macon.

This morning Mr. James Matthews arrived from Perry in charge of a guard en route to the asylum at Milledgeville. On last Monday he was adjudged a lunatic before the ordinary. About two months since he was carried to the Houston county poorhouse, being partially paralyzed, from a camp on the Georgia Southern and Florida railroad. He presented a pitiful object this morning at the passenger depot. Nothing intelligible could be gathered from what he said.

Officer Peter Palethorpe is very confident that Charles Adkins and Bill Wright, colored, had a hand in the robbery of J. R. Hill & Co.'s store at Inman's on yesterday morning. These two worthies robbed Hill & Co.'s store in April last, and when arrested by Officers Palethorpe, Wagnon and Jenkins, and taken to Atlanta, as escaped convicts from the Chattahoochee brick yard, both of whom were under ten years' sentences. Bill Wright told Officer Palethorpe that he would be out of the chaingang in less than five months. It is understood that both Wright and Adkins have again escaped from the chaingang and Officer Palethorpe thinks the negroes are traversing the same course they took last April, less than five months ago.

A GREAT SCHEME.

An Insurance Man Tells the Secrets of the New System.

Headquarters to be Here in Atlanta—The Originator of the Scheme Wants to Know What People Think of It.

"Is the advancement editor in?"

"The who?"

"The advancement editor—the civilization editor—the—the—"

At first sight he would impress you as a perpetual motion man. There was a wild, glassy look in his eyes, a sort of tremor in his voice, and a peculiar, seedy look about his clothes.

"You know what I mean," he said, impatiently. "I want the man that keeps up with the times. I want the man that can understand something new. I want ——"

"Is it ——"

"No, no, no," he exclaimed despairingly, "it is something new. It is something you never heard of. Nobody ever dreamed of it,"

"Well, what is it?"

"In one minute. It is the grandest conception of these wonderful times—something that will take—something that will go. This is an age —"

"Well, what is your scheme?"

"Sir, it is this. I am the originator of the system. It is an insurance system that everybody needs. Why, sir, for example, suppose John Smith, in some political meeting, in the heat of passion, calls Sam Jones a liar. I say to Smith, 'For so much I will issue a policy upon your life.' If Jones is a large man and Smith is a small man, of course the premium is a large one. If, on the other hand, Smith is a large man and Jones a small man, the premium is small. We issue accident insurance policies on the same principle.

"Then again.

"Suppose Jones goes to the club. They all have a good time, and Jones has to walk part of the way home by himself. I say to Jones, 'Look here. For so much I will take out a policy that you get safe home.' If there are any policemen around there, of course the policy will come a little high. If Jumbo Hunter is on that beat, of course we don't take out any policy.

"Now, suppose we take a practical case. Somebody sends a lot of copy to the office. I know how it is. I'm an old newspaper man myself. You promise to save the copy. That's the last anybody can see see of it. Next day he calls around here for the copy. I say to you, 'For so much I will issue a $500 policy.' Then your mind is relieved, ain't it? If you don't see the fellow—all right. If he does jump on yoy, why you get the $500. See how it works?"

"How much—— ?"

"That shows you don't understand it. There are no fixed rates. It all depends on how big he is and how big you are.

"Suppose a fellow brings something up here and you promise to put it in. It don't go in. Get one of my policies.

"Suppose you say that such and such a man stole a coat, or beat his wife. Suppose he is a very large man. Get one of my policies.

Suppose you write up a church festival without going out, and they postpone it all on account of the death of the pastor. You're in a nice fix, ain't you? Get one of my policies. If they don't turn you off, all right. If they do, there is your $500, or $1,000, or $10,000.

"To be more general about it, suppose you are in love. Get one of my policies.

"Suppose your wife wants a new dress. Get one of my policies. Suppose——"

"How long have you been in Atlanta?"

"Just come, sir. My name is Edward Morton Goodrich, Paducah, Ky."

"Were you ever in the insurance business?"

"I never was. I studied law and ran a newspaper for a while, and since then I have spent most of my time traveling about. I have thought a great deal about this system. I have kept it a secret until now. I like Atlanta, and I am going to settle down here. This will be headquarters for this country and Canada."

A GRAND TRIBUTE

To Major John F. Jones From the Hands of an Old Comrade.

The following letter was received yesterday by Judge Calhoun:

MADISON, Ga., September 6.—Judge W. L. Calhoun, Atlanta, Ga.—My Dear Sir: Please convey to the family of the late Major Jones the most profound and heartfelt sympathy of each individual survivor of Company D, Third Georgia regiment. None know their loss better than his old comrades, and he was beloved by all without a solitary exception; and he was most eminently deserving of their love, which we prized far more than the honors conferred by the war department, and to which he was eminently entitled. He was in command of the regiment at Chancellorsville. The writer was wounded the afternoon before the major was brought from the field with his shattered arm, and we lay side by side on the ground after amputation was performed. As they were bringing him from the field he was personally complimented by General Lee, who witnessed the brilliant charge the regiment made when he was shot, and endeavored to keep up with the command, and did until he fainted from the shock. Truly, the Third Georgia Survivors' association has lost one of its grandest heroes. I would write directly to his family, but am not familiar with their names or address.

Yours very truly, W. A. WILEY.

Dyspepsia

Makes many lives miserable, and often leads to self destruction. Distress after eating, sick head ache, heartburn, sour stomach, mental depression, etc., are caused by this very common and increasing disease. Hood's Sarsaparilla tones the stomach, creates an appetite, promotes healthy digestion, relieves sick headache, clears the mind, and cures the most obstinate cases of dyspepsia. Read the following:

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. In an hour after eating I would experience a faintness or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. Hood's Sarsaparilla did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced. It relieved me of that faint, tired, all-gone feeling. I have felt so much better since I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, that I am happy to recommend it." G. A. PAGE, Watertown, Mass.

THE REPUBLICANS.

Francis M. Van Pelt Nominated by the Senatorial Convention.

He Accepts the Honor—The Platform Upon Which He Will Run—A Few Other Echoes From Tappan's Hall.

When the hour of noon rolled around yesterday the republican senatorial convention filed briskly into Tappan's hall, on North Broad street, and sank upon the benches.

Jackson McHenry, the silver-tongued hackman of the fourth ward, mounted the rostrum, and, flashing his eyes upon the dark assemblage, exclaimed:

"Dish 'ere convenshun will now kum ter odder."

In a pair of minutes silence reigned so densely that people two blocks away could have heard a coupling pin drop.

There being no vociferous objection, Jackson McHenry was clothed with the dignity of temporary chairman.

He thanked his fellow-countrymen for the honor in a hoarse whisper.

A delegate named J. Spillman was sentenced to the secretaryship.

Hollow murmurs in the corridor and the heavy tread of number nine broganned feet told but too truly that there was trouble on the outside.

"Dat's dem delicates from Cobb," yelled a member, "an' sum ub 'em ain't got no bisness in hy'ar. I moves a kommittee on kredenshuls."

Dark fists were now beating a tattoo on the door and cold shudders crept over the faces of the delegates when the chairman announced in deep falsetto tones:

"I 'pints Smith Easley uv Fulton, Howard Farrar uv Cobb, and S. H. Harper uv Clayton, dat kommittee on kredenshuls to fix dis bisiness, and I want dem to sqush de racket."

The committee dived through the door and disappeared in the gloom of the corridors.

Sounds of a short, sharp struggle floated through the walls, followed by a few dull thuds and a rumbling noise as of the forms of men bumping upon the steps as they rolled down to the pavement.

Then the committee glided in softly and reported that J. Spillman, J. Kemble, J. H. Fair and J. Y. Starks were the proper delegates from Cobb.

The delegates from Clayton were M. Miller and S. H. Harper, and Fulton was represented by Josiah Sherman, J. C. Jenkins, J. J. Martin, J. F. Thompson, L. W. Wimby and Jacob McKinley.

There was a prolonged shout of triumph, after which Jackson McHenry was rip-roariously elevated to the dizzy height of permanent chairman.

Before the storm died away, Smith Easley found himself pinioned to the chair of permanent secretary.

The chairman then spoke into being a committee on nominations.

Smith Easley delivered an oration. He pitched into the sub-committee for failing to bring out a state ticket at Macon. That was not the way they were doing business in Alabama and Arkansas and other southern states. Efforts should likewise be made in Georgia to "rekindle the lost fire of the party." "We can do nothing," remarked the orator, "but bow our heads in shame." He had letters in his inside vest pocket from various prominent republicans who were not only willing but anxious to run for governor. He mentioned Colonel W. L. Scruggs, Colonel Jesse Glenn of Dalton, and Colonel Ephraim Tweedy of Augusta. He approved of disagreeing to the action of the sub-committee.

J. Spillman wanted a straightout state ticket nominated, but was opposed to making a race on paper. He wanted a red-hot, aggressive fight.

Chairman McHenry—"Dish'ere 'scussions' all outer odder—and I wants you gemmen ter let up."

Delegate Wimby was terribly exercised about the State road. There were men getting ready to gobble it up.

Delegate Thompson bounced up and said that prohibition was the vital question and not the sale of the State road.

The dinner horn sounded and the convention fell apart to recuperate.

The Afternoon Session.

Smith Easley, from the committee on platform, submitted the following report, which was adopted by eleven to one:

The Platform.

The republicans of the thirty-fifth senatorial district in convention assembled, submit the following to the republican voters of this district:

1. We are in hearty accord with the principles of the republican party as set forth in the platform of the national convention at Chicago. Believing that the principles thereinenunciated ar e to the best interest of all the people of these United States, as well as to the people of this senatorial district. Recognizing the fact that the tariff is the one great issue in this national campaign in which the wage earners of the country are more deeply interested than in any other question that now is, or may hereafter arise, in this great national contest, we pledge our earnest support to Harrison and Morton, nominees of the republican party, for president and vice-president.

2. We are opposed to the legislature of the state interfering by any act, or otherwise in any manner or form, with the special act of prohibition passed for Cobb county.

3. We are opposed to the sale of the State road and the payment for "betterments," except such as are just between man and man.

4. We pledge the people of this district, should they honor our candidate with an election, he will favor a more liberal appropriation for public education than is now appropriated, and we commend him to the voters and ask their suffrages.

(Signed(S. W. EASLEY, JR., Chairman.
L. W. WIMBY,
J. SPILMAN,
JOHN KIMBLE,
M. J. MILLER.

J. Spillman nominated Francis M. VanPelt for senator from this district.

He was unanimously nominated.

Josiah Sherman, Jackson McHenry and W. E. Day, of Fulton; Clark Goddard, of Clayton, and R. M. Mitchell and J. Y. Starke, of Cobb, were made the executive committee.

The rules were suspended, and Mr. VanPelt addressed the convention, accepting the nomination.

Several delegates pledged the nominee the support of their counties, and the convention adjourned.

Clarinda (nestling by her lover's side)—O, George, I needed your protection so much today. A huge mastiff with distended jaws came bounding at me, and to escape the ferocious animal I hastily climbed a tree. I wish you had been there.

A NOCTURNAL ADVENTURE.

What Two Young Ladies of Lithonia Discovered.

From the Sylvania, Ga., Watchman.

Two young ladies were passing down the sidewalk at the back of the courthouse on Saturday night, and just as they came alongside the clerk's office they beheld—oh! fearful sight—a faint light on the house, as though the wearied wings of some wandering fire-fly had feebly flopped. They stopped. They gazed. They trembled. Ah! no. It flared, it flickered not. To make assurance still more sure the maidens closed their eyes and looked again. And then they knew the awful truth. And the thought of it came like a chill blast of winter. 'Twas fire! No mistake about it. It burned. Some one in passing had snuffed a cigar on the house and the lighted ashes had not yet gone out. They both stopped opposite the rapacious element, as if 'twere by agreement, and were filled with wild forebodings. What was to be done? If the town was saved the fire must be stopped and that right speedily. No time was to be lost. A few minutes more and all would be vain. If 'twere done 'twere well 'twere done quickly. It was a supreme moment, but they met it bravely, heroically. They shrank not. They did not shriek as they would have shrilly done had it been a bat or bug problem that required solution. Not they. They resolved to act silently, but with celerity and caution. With blanched cheeks and pale, quivering lips they held hands and murmured, "Courthouse shall not burn tonight." Then, with quick, firm, womanly resolve, they advanced together, and with the swoop of a swifty swipe the dying ashes were scattered into the wide realms of space.

It was done. The fire was extinnuished, never to blaze again. Not so the story of their deed. It will continue to grow brighter as the years roll by, shining upon history's wing.

In danger's dark hour, when strong men will rave
Have ye e'er heard of maidens so calm and so brave

Moody Disgusted.

From the Chicago Mail.

Before D. L. Moody, the evangelist, started out in his religious work he was a traveling salesman for a boot and shoe house here in Chicago, and was well known to all of the drummers on the road. When he "got religion" his methods of approaching sinners were most peculiar and sensational. He would go to one of the wholesale houses, open the door, put his head in and inquire in his deepest bass voice:

"Is Jesus here?"

One day his question was misunderstood by a young salesman who had never seen or heard of Moody, and this innocent misunderstanding led Moody to put him down as a vile wretch. About the noon hour one day, the young salesman was engaged near the front door with a customer, when Mr. Moody opened the door and put his usual query:

"Young man, is Jesus here?"

"No, sir," was the response; "I think he has just stepped out to lunch."

Comparison Solicited.

A wise discrimination should be exercised by all who take medicine. The proprietors of Hood's Sarsaparilla solicit a careful comparison of this medicine with other blood purifiers and medicines, being confident that the peculiar merits of Hood's Sarsaparilla are so apparent that the people will unhesitatingly prefer it to any other preparation. Hood's Sarsaparilla is not a mixture of molasses and a few inert roots and herbs, but it is a peculiar concentrated extract of the best alteratives and blood-purifying remedies of the vegetable kingdom. The enormous sales of Hood's Sarsaparilla and the wonderful cures effected, prove even more than has been claimed for this medicine. If you are sick the best medicine is none too good. Therefore, take Hood's Sarsaparilla.

FOUND EXCLUSIVELY ON THE

STOVES & RANGES.

There is not a Cooking Apparatus made using the Solid Oven Door but that the loss in weight of meat is from twenty-five to forty per cent. of the meat roasted. In other words, a rib of beef, weighing ten pounds if roasted medium to well-done will lose three pounds. The same roasted in the CHARTER OAK RANGE using the WIRE GAUZE OVEN DOOR, loses about one pound.

To allow meat to shrink is to lose a large portion of its juices and flavor. The fibres do not separate, and it becomes tough, tasteless and unpalatable.

ATLANTA, GA., SEPTEMBER 8, 1888.

With starvation threatening our brothers in Jacksonville, no man in Atlanta is too poor to contribute something to their relief.

An Appeal From Florida.

Our advices leave no room to doubt that there is actual suffering from hunger and nakedness in Jacksonville. The laboring classes are out of work—the well-to-do classes are out of business—and it is hard to see how suffering can be averted without outside help.

There are thousands who would leave Jacksonville, and thus save their lives, if they had funds to take them. It is the crying and imperative duty of more favored cities to provide these funds. In this work Atlanta will do her share.

It has been suggested that each individual send his contributions direct to Jacksonville. This would be worthy, but it is not best. It is best to send your money through some source in Atlanta so that the amount contributed by Atlanta may be ascertained and kept track of. This, for no purpose of boasting if the amount should be large, but simply because Atlanta has tireless and unscrupulous enemies who seek opportunity to criticise her, and it is well to keep the record against them.

But however you may want to send the money, be sure to send it promptly. Contribute freely and let the people of Jacksonville feel that Atlanta's heart and purse are open to them always—as her gates are!

FRED D. MUSSEY, the republican correspondent, is not as amusing as he used to be. Matters are growing serious.

Where are the Republican Leaders?

There is great inquiry just now for the republican leaders. Where are they?

Candidate Harrison has had the good sense to return to Indianapolis by the back way, and nothing more will be heard of him until the newspapers announce his defeat on the 7th of November.

Brother Blaine is cavorting around in Maine, but he is defending the trusts and smashing the republican platform. He is the republican leader, to be sure, but such leadership as his means the defeat of Candidate Harrison. Perhaps this is what the republican Bull of the Woods is trying to do, for with Harrison defeated in 1888, Brother Blaine would certainly be the candidate in 1892.

But where are the republican leaders who really desire to see Harrison elected? Where is the enthusiasm that was expected to break out about this time? Into what cave of gloom has the republican hurrah withdrawn itself?

If there is to be a real contest—if the republican campaign is not intended to be a farce and a burlesque, the time has arrived when some of the leaders should step to the front and make a show of opposition.

As matters stand now, the democrats will have a walk-over.

MURAT HALSTEAD is still in New York. He is probably hunting for a republican leader.

The Weather and Crops.

For a fortnight now Georgia has been dangling in the tail end of a storm. The celebrated prophets of the weather bureau call it "a disturuance" one day, "precipitation" the next, and so on to the end of their vast vocabulary.

But it has been a precipitation the most of the time, and a very serious one. We have no detailed information from the plantations, but there can be no doubt that the cotton crop has been badly damaged, and this damage extends over a very large area.

It is not necessary to inquire at this time as to the whereabouts of the storm center, for the drizzle we have been having, alternating with heavy rains, has been enough to hurt the farmers almost as much as the bagging trust threatens to do. The bad weather comes just in time to beat out the bottom crop in middle Georgia, and to cut off the top crop by causing the squares and bolls to shed.

Altogether, the farmer appears to be having a hard time. He cannot circumvent the seasons and the weather, but he can certainly cripple the bagging trust. The unity of the weather ought to give him a cue in this direction. If he can join with his neighbors and hold out against the demands of the trust, the bad weather will not prove so serious after all.

It is all a matter of pluck and patience.

THE republicans hope that Brother Blaine will confine his magnificent statesmanship to speeches in Maine.

The Society Column.

An experienced man of business—a man who has traveled and studied human nature and enjoyed his share of social pleasures—remarked the other day that the society column in the big dailies was a very demoralizing affair. When pressed for an explanation the speaker said that there was a disposition on the part of young people of both sexes to turn to the society column before reading anything else. Great questions of war and peace, the progress of epidemics, and events of importance in their own city were insignificant in their eyes compared with an account of a reception or a dinner.

The philosopher who was thus freely airing his views went on to say that when young people gave themselves up to this sort of reading they became frivolous. The girls dawdled away their days over questionable novels and dreamed of gorgeous Parisian toilettes and elaborate puffs in the society column. The young men looked forward to the time when they would cut a figure in society circles and be the observed of all observers.

The majority of these dreamers, of course, are doomed to disappointment. Poor girls refuse offers of marriage from industrious young men and wait for the man of fortune who never comes. Young men with an income of fifteen hundred a year go with companions who spend three thousand a year and try to equal their style of living, while the three thousand dollar set are running with the six thousand dollar class and trying to keep up with them. On every hand jealousy, worry and disappointment take possession of the unfortunates who have the society craze. Men who find themselves unable to keep pace with their set become swindlers and defaulters. They lie, gamble, steal, do anything to keep prominently before the public in the society column, and in many instances the end is a flight to Canada, self-murder or insanity.

Now, said our philosopher, all this is unnecessary. Our young people should be taught that a life entirely given up to society is a very unsatisfactory one, with little real pleasure, and no end of trouble. The men and women who go through life with moderate desires and quiet tastes have the best of it—they have good health, good morals, length of days and prosperity.

Fortunately, Atlanta has not reached such metropolitan proportions as to make the remarks of this close observer strictly applicable to her little social world, but in what has been said there is food for thought for all.

The society column is a queer thing. Some find it merely amusing and entertaining; others find in it nothing but disappointment, ruin and death.

IT seems to us that the democratic campaign committee should lay in a supply of Jamaica ginger.

Malice Run Mad.

The Chattanooga Times is engaged in a very malignant work. It is attempting to create the impression that in 1878 there were original cases of yellow fever in Atlanta. It says:

> The same gentleman, "a prominent business man," relates in detail and circumstantially the occurrence of an original case of yellow fever in Atlanta in the latter part of October, 1878. Our informant had all the facts from a prominent merchant who saw the patient at the black vomit stage, knew he died within three days of the attack, and had the admission of the attending physician that it was yellow fever; the victim had not been beyond the city limits for three months, and was a man of good habits and standing. Within a few days of the death of this gentleman a sharp frost fell.
> We can readily believe this, we have never doubted the statements common at the time and coming directly from Atlanta people, that there were fully a dozen of original cases of yellow fever in that city in October, 1878. Why should not such have been the case? The town was full of fever refugees from plague-stricken points during the whole fall. Several died there who contracted the disease elsewhere; but, as luck had it, the infection got but a slight hold and that was so late that it was easy for the authorities, with the aid of news paper lying, to suppress the facts.

It is needless to deny this absurd story. Everybody knows it to be false. It is being proved false by the scores of Florida refugees now in Atlanta. The yellow fever cannot take hold in Atlanta. This has been proved in a dozen epidemics. It has been proved over and over again, and will be proved in the present epidemic.

It is needless, we repeat, to deny the absurd story of the Times. It cannot and will not give the name of any reputable man who will stand for the truth of its ridiculous rumor. There was no more an original case of yellow fever here in 1878 than there was an original case of cholera here when the city was filled with refugees flying from the plague that had almost depopulated Chattanooga!

It is probable that certain people would be glad to see a case of yellow fever break out in Atlanta. But they will not be gratified. In the meantime, the Times' silly story won't hurt!

A Word for Rider Haggard.

The current number of the Literary World says: "It is useless to hope that Mr. Haggard will ever learn to write the English language correctly."

It must be admitted that the author of "She" is a little off when he attempts to express himself in the conventional forms adopted by our so-called best writers, but this fact does not make him less interesting or limit his circle of readers.

When a reader is under the spell of a great story teller he is not on the lookout for little faults and blemishes. Edgar A. Poe attacked Dickens's grammar, but nobody cared a rap about it. When a writer has an admirable style he does not get it by studying any set of formal rules; he is intellectually built that way. "Do you understand grammar?" said Bulwer when he met N. P. Willis. "I don't understend it, and I can't, and it is a mystery to me how anyone can." And yet Bulwer had a good style.

It is to be hoped that Mr. Haggard will not give up in despair because the grammarians are against him. The strong, bold writers of the Elizabethan age wobbled fearfully in the matter of grammar according to our modern rules, but they delivered their messages to posterity all the same, and we are still reading, admiring and imitating them.

The writer of good English never thinks about grammar; he writes it as naturally as the bird sings. But the man who is always thinking about grammatical rules never writes attractive English; it may be good in a sense, but it lacks something that it must have before it will go home to the business and bosoms of men. It is true that writers are made, as well as born, but one who has been equipped by nature will always distance one who is the outcome of art.

It is a waste of time to pick flaws in the style of a writer whose works are eagerly read by millions; one might just as well condemn the sun because it has spots on it. The people will take the sun, spots and all; and they will read what interests them without being severely critical. After all, the judgment of the people is the thing.

IT is putting it mildly to say that the republican party is in a hole. It is in a fifty-foot well, with the windlass gone, and the bucket at the bottom.

"A Dollar a Day."

Some time ago the Indianapolis Journal offered a standing reward of $2,000 to anyone who would prove that General Harrison ever said that a dollar and two meals a day were enough for any workingman.

Well, the proof is ready. Edward F. Gould, an Indianapolis Knight of Labor, has found fifteen men who are willing to swear that they heard General Harrison utter the objectionable remarks credited to him. Mr. Gould has written a letter to the Journal giving the names of his witnesses, with a summary of their statements, and he demands, as he has a right to demand, the $2,000 offered by the Journal.

At last accounts the money had not been paid. It never will be paid. This, however, is a small matter. The offer of the reward has brought out the truth, and if the truth defeats Harrison nobody has any right to complain. The American workingmen will let the general know what they think of his labor views when they go to the polls in November.

An Interview With Chairman Brice.

THE CONSTITUTION will print tomorrow from its New York correspondent a full and authorized interview with Chairman Calvin S. Brice, of the national democratic committee, giving progress of the work up to this date and the outlook for the future as seen from democratic headquarters.

This interview is authorized and is exclusive to THE CONSTITUTION. It will be submitted to Colonel Brice today and will be telegraphed to THE CONSTITUTION tonight and printed in Sunday's edition. This will be the most important campaign paper yet printed in a southern newspaper.

THE POLICE OF Cleveland, Ohio, have been ordered to tear down the red flag wherever they find it. It is the banner of anarchy and provokes lawless outbreaks.

EDITOR PULITZER, OF the New York World, has cabled for his family to join him in Europe. He has lost one eye, and is threatened with the loss of the other. It is feared that his days of usefulness are over.

THE CHATTANOOGA NEWS indignantly asks: "Have the people got a board of health, or has the board of health got the people?" If the News adopts this line of questioning there is no end to it. For instance, it might ask: Have the people got the jim-jams, or have the jim-jams got the people?

THEODORE ROOSEVELT IS pitching into Lord Wolseley because the latter ranks Lee higher than Grant as a commander. This is very funny to Roosevelt and he writes flippantly and sneeringly of Wolseley's judgment. The Englishman's reputation as a soldier makes his opinion worth something. Roosevelt's utter lack of knowledge in the premises makes his views worthless.

SEVERAL COUNTIES IN North Carolina were largely settled by Scotchmen—followers of the ill-fated house of Stuart. So many of their descendents are now living that the Scottish Chief, a large and handsome weekly, has been started at Red Springs, North Carolina. As its name indicates, it is devoted to Scottish interests and traditions, as well as local affairs.

MRS. THOMAS SCOTT, of Chicago, read a number of silly articles on "How to Be Beautiful." She resolved to be beautiful and tried all sorts of cosmetics. Her husband was summoned home the other day to see her die. She had been poisoned by the use of face powder containing oxide of lead.

HON. JOHN TEMPLETON GRAVES, one of the electors at large for Georgia, has been physically indisposed, and will not take the field for a canvass of the state until about the 25th of September. His eloquent voice will then be heard in various sections of the state, and we can promise all who go out to hear him a rare intellectual treat. There are few abler young men in the country than John Templeton Graves.

SAM SMALL AND Bob Ingersoll, according to the New York World, occupied adjoining rooms at the Grand Union hotel, Saratoga, one night last week. Mr. Small was on an evangelical tour. Mr. Ingersoll was on the bed.

THEY HAVE VERY strict notions of propriety in Mobile. A gentleman who has been promenading the streets of that city at night, attired in a black veil and a long black gown, has stirred up so much excitement that the police are on the watch for him.

ELEVENTH GEORGIA.

Meet Yesterday in the New Confederate Hall.

Speeches by Governor Gordon, Captain Carson, and Others—A List of the Veterans and Their Visitors.

For the first time since they laid down their arms at Appomattox courthouse, the survivors of the 11th Georgia met yesterday.

The reunion is one that will long be remembered with pleasure by the old veterans, and furnished occasion for many pleasant and pathetic incidents.

The meeting was held in Confederate hall, the new headquarters of the Fulton County Veterans' association.

After an hour or so spent in handshaking, and the recalling of scenes in which they had figured together, the regiment was called to order by Colonel William Luffman. A list of the veterans of the 11th, as well as of the other regiments represented, was made out by the secretary, Colonel W. H. Ramsay. The following is a list of the members present belonging to the 11th:

In company A: K. L. Boone, T. E. Goudlock, A. F. Goudlock, A. G. Dorsey, all of Gainesville. Company B was not represented. Company C was represented by Captain W. H. Ramsay and G. G. Adams, both of Powder Springs, Ga. Company D was represented by John W. Webb, of Ellijay. Neither company E nor company F was represented. From company G was J. M. Wilson, of Atlanta. From company H were J. W. Morrow, W. F. Baker, J. E. Nunnally, Thompson Reeves, C. P. Blasingame, A. L. Sluder, D. N. Hudson, G. P. Sigman, L. H. Sigman, W. P. Lassiter, J. A. Baxley and Joel Smith. Company I was represented by W. H. Mangham, of Georgetown, Ga.; company K was represented by J. T. Walker, of Houston county.

Besides these there were two field officers of the old Eleventh, Colonel William Laffman, of Spring Place, Ga., and Major, now ex-Governor Henry D. McDaniel, of Walton county.

The visitors were: Governor Gordon, Judge A. L. Calhoun, Colonel L. P. Thomas, E. M. Blount, Company B, Twenty-sixth Georgia; W. A. Wright, Company K, Third Georgia; H. C. Haralson, Company H, Third Georgia; John V. Bishop, Company C, Thirtieth Georgia; W. T. Shiyley, Company K, Seventh Georgia; W. A. Vaughn, Companp C, Ninth Georgia; Captain J. P. Carson, Company I, Fourth Georgia; Dr. Amos Fox, Second Kentucky Artillery; George B. Forbes, Washington Artillery; W. H. Harrison, captain Company E, Thirty-First Georgia; Charles L. D'Alvigney, Ninth Georgia Artillery, and Captain John Milledge.

After the roll was completed, Governor Gordon was introduced by Governor McDaniel as "the greatest living soldier." The sentiment found a ready and a hearty echo in the breasts of the old soldiers, and Governor Gordon was greeted with prolonged and eager applause. He thanked the veterans for their welcome, greeted them to Atlanta, and spoke earnestly and touchingly of the allegiance that they all owe now to the re-united country.

Captain Carson was next introduced and heartily greeted. He made a short but ringing talk, and was followed in turn by Comptroller-General Wright, Colonel L. P. Thomas, Judge Calhoun, Captain "Tip" Harrison and Captain Morrow.

The speeches were excellent, appropriate in every respect, and well received. There was no formality, and everything passed off pleasantly.

It was then decided unanimously that the regiment be organized as a permanent institution. Colonel Luffman was made president; ex-Governor H. D. McDaniel, vice-president; Captain Ramsay, James W. Morrow, and Captain Carson were chosen secretaries.

Messrs. J. E. Nunnally, J. T. Walker, John Lively, W. R. West, and K. L. Boon were appointed as a committee from the 11th to confer with the other regiments of the brigade as to the practicability of having the entire brigade meet at the next reunion.

Judge Kit Warren was elected historian. His duty is to prepare a history of the regiment for the next meeting.

It was then decided that the next reunion be held in Atlanta, first Thursday after the first Monday in August, 1889.

The meeting then adjourned, and the regiment was dined at the Markham.

It was a great day for the Eleventh. Most of them left for home yesterday, or leave this morning, and it can be safely said that a more pleasant and generally successful reunion has not been held in Georgia since the war.

CONFEDERATE VETERANS' FAIR.

The Meeting of the Executive Committee and Committee on the Veterans' Fair.

These committees have issued the following statement:

The visit of our old chieftain, Jefferson Davis, to this city, on the occasion of the unveiling of the Ben Hill monument, gave birth to this association. It was first presided over by Hon. W. A. Wright, comptroller-general, the first president. Hon. W. L. Calhoun is now the presiding officer. Our first intention was to build a suitable home for our disabled and destitute confederate veterans, and to place at the head of those who sleep peacefully in Oakland cemetery, and in full view of where some of them fell with faces to the foe, headstones of marble to mark their last resting place, and to substitute those so rapidly fading away. This cherished and commendable hope has not been abandoned by the association. The calls made upon us from those yet living, who wore the gray with honor to themselves and country have been urgent and numerous. Our finances are growing less and less. If our friends in this city could only listen to the sad accounts of one-legged and one-armed soldiers who parted with these useful members on the battle fields of Georgia and Virginia, or to those who have been unfortunate in business enterprises, with shattered health and dependent families—in some instances where every member is sick or unable to work—the wolf at the door, and the landlord pressing for his rents—an appeal to you would not be necessary. Go to our relief committee and hear what they have heard. Let them recount their sad tales of distress, and look over the long list of names of those we have aided—not only those who belong to the Fulton county Veterans' association—but to others who made a satisfactory showing of their worthiness, who by accident or otherwise are thrown among us, and are compelled to make these appeals to us. Is it too much to ask our people to come once more to our assistance? The cold winter months will soon be here. If our pet idea to build a home cannot be carried out right away, we can at least provide for the most needy among those we all love to honor for their valor and fidelity. In order to accomplish this we propose to hold a fair as above stated, commencing on Monday, the 22d of October, and continuing as long as expedient. Dr. Amos Fox, treasurer of the association, and the chairman of the subcommittee on contributions, will canvass the city soon, assisted by other members of the committee, in raising funds and means to carry out our plans, and for the fair decorations of all sorts and kinds that can be made of service will be thankfully received, and our people are earnestly requested and urged to do what they can for us. What other object more worthy? Come to our help; come cheerfully and willingly and liberally, and God will bless you. See full list of the committees selected by the association published below.

LESTER WALLACK.

The death of Lester Wallack removes from the world's stage one of those actors whose influence has been healthy, a man whose name has been prominently connected with dramatic art for the past forty years. He has been, in the days of his activity, the chief leader of the guild in America—the Nestor of the American stage.

***

Wallack has been prominent as actor and manager. In the years that he has been before the public he has appeared in many roles, and it may truly be said of him that he never played one indifferently.

It is as manager that he has been most prominent during the past few years, and as New York has been his scene of action, the world outside of the metropolis has seen but little of him. But we have all heard of his successes, and the theater which still bears his name has been a favorite resort of visitors to the city.

***

The most recent event which brought Mr. Wallack prominently before the public was the great benefit tendered him on the 21st of last May. It was a testimonial of the most prominent actors in America to a man who was an old and tried friend of most of them. Hamlet was the play, and at the head of the cast of the performance was the name of the world's greatest actor, Edwin Booth.

The other great ones were these: Lawrence Barrett, Joe Jefferson, W. J. Florence, John Gilbert, Herbert Kelcey, Joseph Wheelock, Milnes Levick and several others; with the female parts taken by Helena Modjeska, Rose Coghlen and Gertrude Kellogg.

As a whole it was the grandest aggregation of actors that America has ever seen. The crowd and the reception tendered the actors were such as were deserved.

***

It was but a few weeks ago that a transfer of the Wallack theater was made to Mr. A. M. Palmer, and it was announced that the theater would take the name of the new proprietor. But Lester Wallack did not live to see his name taken down from the house which had borne it so long. The change will not be made until the beginning of the regular winter season.

Since his retirement from the active management of the theater, some time ago, Mr. Wallack has led a quiet life. He had what he called a "rebellious leg," thanks to rheumatism, an old enemy, yet he did not give up the idea of returning to the stage. Upon the occasion of the benefit, he appeared hearty and vigorous, and, in the short speech he made, said that he hoped soon to return to the scene of his many triumphs.

His last days have been spent in the preparation of a series of articles for the Century Magazine, descriptive of his own stage experiences and of stage life during the period of his prominence. It is said that Mr. Wallack had long had in mind the publication of such a book, and it is likely, therefore, that the work was well advanced when death overtook him.

He died at his cottage in Stamford, Connecticut, where he has spent much of his time in his late years. It is described as a simple cottage about a mile from the town and overlooking the sea. It was a cottage rich in the treasures it contained, such as only a man of Wallack's prominence and popularity would be able to gather together—pictures with histories, valuable books and autographs and relics of all kinds.

***

His life has been crowded with events, his influence has been for good, and in his death the American stage loses a man who has been an honor o his profession. O. H. L.

A Strange History.

From the Louisville Commercial.

Several months ago the newspapers made note of an exceptionally strange case. John Heibach, during a quarrel with his wife, was coolly informed by her that the girl he had called daughter for thirteen years was not his child at all; that her father was Michael Bach, a butcher, who lived on the same square. There was a row between the two men, during which Bach bit off one of Heibach's fingers.

Heibach is not an emotional man. He did not turn his wife out of doors, nor did he threaten to take her life. He expressed some sorrow that he had wasted so much on another man's child, and that he would have no feeling about it if Bach would refund him the money he had paid for a piano for the girl, and also reimburse him for the cost of supporting her.

The next step was a suit for divorce by Heibach. All this time Bach took life easily. It seemed to make no difference in his domestic relations. He showed no grief over ruining the happiness of his friend. Heibach, it will be remembered, lost a finger. He sued Bach for $10,000 damages. This worried Bach very much. He did not mind debauching Heibach's wife and disrupting his home, but the thought of losing his savings nearly drove him distracted.

His mind became affected. He acted strangely, and his family began to keep watch over him. Yesterday, during the parade, Bach found himself temporarily alone, and shot himself through the brain. Death was instantaneous.

Editor Childs.

From the New York World.

I saw George W. Childs today. He is looking the perfect picture of health. He does not look a day older than when I saw him two years ago. Each year he seems to become more and more kind and more and more skillful in devising ways to increase the happiness of those about him. Mr. Childs is a democrat, but is very conservative in his politics. I asked him how he thought the election would result. He said, in a very careful way: "It is going to be very close. The result is very doubtful. If the president had not written his tariff message he would have had a walk-over. As it is it will be such a close contest that no one now can tell the outcome." In front of Mr. Childs's cottage is one of the finest lawns in the country. Indeed, it would be hard to find in England a greener or smoother piece of turf. It is Mr. Childs's especial pride. He said that he never looked at it without thinking of the English proverb, "It takes fifty years to make a gentleman, and one hundred years to produce a fine, grassy lawn." Mr. Childs has sixty acres of lawn at his country place at Wooten, equal in quality to this fine stretch at Long Branch.

Whittier Loves Us.

From the New York Tribune.

Mr. Whittier is quoted elsewhere as thus replying to a southerner who charged him with being an enemy to the south: "I was never an enemy to the south or the holders of slaves. I inherited from my Quaker ancestry hatred of slavery, but not of slaveholders. To every call of suffering or distress in the south I have promptly responded to the extent of my ability. I was one of the very first to recognize the rare gift of the Carolinian poet Timrod, and I was the intimate friend of the lamented Paul H. Hayne, though both wrote fiery lyrics against the north. I am sure no one rejoices more heartily than I do at the prosperity of the southern states."

"Ouida" has really become religious. It was rumored some time ago that she was verging towards repentance, and now it is learned that she spends her days in reading pious books and making long prayers. She even refuses to associate with worldly people. She is not devoted to any special denomination, but seems to be slowly forming a cult of her own.

General Lew Wallace has in his library what is probably the last fetter broken from the wrist of a slave. It was removed by a locksmith from the arm of a young mulatto woman who ran away from her master near Baltimore and sought refuge in General Wallace's headquarters.

De Lesseps is referred to as the "duke of Suez." He will soon celebrate his eighty-third birthday. They tell it of him that in 1822, when he graduated, he knew nothing of geography and could not even tell the cardinal points on the map. He has learned more, however, as he has grown older.

Ex-Congressman Harvey Watterson, the colonel's venerable father, has been paying a visit to Mrs. Polk at Nashville. He remembers hearing her husband speak when the future president made his first run for congress. He tells the Nashville reporters that his son, the colonel, is a good ten years older than he is. When James K. Polk was elected governor in 1839, this same jolly and wonderfully well preserved old gentleman succeeded him in the house of representatives.

COTTON BAGGING

Will be Received by Southern Insurance Men.

President Mims and Mr. Clarence Knowles Speak for the Insurance Men and Give a Few New Points.

Cotton bagging is bound to win.

The effort of the cotton traders to rally the insurance men to their aid, by refusing insurance to other classes of bagging than jute, has failed, and now cotton bagging will have a fair field in an open market.

Meeting Major Mims, president of the Southeastern Tariff association, yesterday, he was asked:

"Suppose a bale of cotton in cotton bagging were presented to you?"

"I would insure it without hesitation. There is no rule in favor of jute among the insurance companies. Cotton bagging is, in fact, safer than jute. Jute bagging is about the most inflammable covering imaginable for cotton. It has to be put through a chemical operation to lessen its danger, and the same operation could be applied to cotton cloth. It is the cotton trader who objects to miscellaneous bagging, principally because of its liability to tear. Insurance men have no interest in refusing insurance in almost any other material. I certainly will write insurance risks whenever asked to do so upon cotton-covered cotton."

"This will also be the policy of the Southeastern Tariff association?"

"Most decidedly."

Mr. Clarence Knowles, the father of the tariff association, was equally as emphatic as Major Mims.

"Why," said he, "it was the cotton risk which called together the Southeastern Tariff association. So great was the dissatisfaction with cotton risks, and with jute as bagging, that the southern insurance men were called together in New Holland, in 1882, and an organization was effected."

"And you were elected president?"

"Yes. It was universally admitted that jute was as inflammable almost as powder, and the great question was to get either a substitute, or to discover some chemical preparation which would lessen its dangerous character. At one of our meetings an Augusta man exhibited a preparation called anti-phlogan, which he claimed would render fabrics non-inflammable. His tests gave satisfaction, but for some reason invention and inventor passed out of mind."

"What about the refusal of North Carolina insurance men to take risks on cotton bagging?"

"There is not a word of truth in it. Under the rules of the association ordinary business is left in the hands of the local agents, but the cotton risks are referred directly to the president and executive committee of the association here in Atlanta. We have never refused insurance on other bagging because it was never applied for, but if it should be applied for the risk would be written up at once. Viewed from an insurance standpoint cotton bagging is infinitely superior to jute. Did you ever see a cotton fire?"

"No."

"Well, I have. If a match should be applied at one end of a collection of cotton, with adverse winds, the fire would extend, nevertheless, like the flash of a pistol. So you see we are more anxious for a change even than the farmers. The Lane mills, of New Orleans, offer osnabergs for bagging, and burlaps, in my opinion, would also be an improvement."

"Whence, then, comes the objection to cotton bagging?"

"From Liverpool, where the requirement of jute bagging is made, but I see that the Liverpool traders are willing to relax the rule, so that those who want to try cotton bagging can do so."

"What is the rule about insuring cotton?"

"The warehouseman either insures it on his own risk, or in trust for each customer. Under the latter form each farmer can present cotton baled to suit himself, and thus find out that insurance will be issued to him as readily on cotton bagging as on jute."

"Do you regulate the warehouses?"

"For the purpose of increasing security against loss we have a lower rate for standard warehouses than for those not standard. Seeing the difficulty of getting secure bagging, we turned our attention to the warehouses. An open warehouse, with 25,000 bales of cotton stored in it, would be a certain prey for total destruction. Every bale in sight would go. We planned a standard warehouse, divided into small compartments, thus decreasing risks, upon which a lower rate is given. There is no business to which more scientific attention is given than that of insurance."

"So farmers need have no hesitation, on the score of insurance, in using cotton bagging?"

"No, they need have no fear. We shall certainly help the farmer in every way, and risks will be taken as readily on anything else as on jute."

The importance of these declarations cannot be over-estimated. They mean that cotton baled in any manner so as to be merchantable will be promptly insured. This removes one of the strongest objections warehousemen could have against taking such cotton. The Liverpool men, according to advices from Washington, will not insist on jute.

Therefore, use cotton bagging when you can get it.

Storm the fort and victory will come to the farmer.

Let us sell the library building, move the books to the Young Men's Christian association, and employ the surplus over-paying the bonds due on the library to finishing up the Young Men's Christian association. Then make the library a part of the Young Men's Christian association and free to its members. It will make a good institution. The day of pay libraries is over. Cheap publications have killed them. For $4, the annual dues of our library, you can buy forty standard books in Lovell's or Franklin Square. This is more than the average reader uses, and at the end of the year he owns the books."

ATLANTA'S AID.

The Contributions to the Jacksonville Relief Fund.

The Chamber of Commerce Will Honor a Draft for $500—The Constitution's Statement.

It was dull, rainy and disagreeable yesterday, but the soliciting committee appointed by the Atlanta chamber of commerce secured a nice starter in the way of subscription to the relief fund.

It goes without saying that Atlanta will do her share toward relieving the distress that the epidemic has brought to the fair southern city. There is no necessity for elaboration on this statement, and as figures speak louder than words, THE CONSTITUTION will permit them to tell the story when the grand total of Atlanta's contribution is made up.

Below is a partial list of yesterday's subscriptions to the Atlanta chamber of commerce relief fund. Several lists in the hands of different members of the committee have not yet been reported on, but will be added tomorrow, and appear in Sunday's issue of THE CONSTITUTION. All citizens and business men desiring to add their help to this good cause will please send in their names and amounts to the chairman, Mr. E. P. Chamberlin, or to either of the following members of the committee: M. C. Kiser, T. L. Langston, T. J. Hightower, Henry Boylston, Aaron Haas, John R. Gramling, Charles S. Kingsberry.

THE CONSTITUTION received subscriptions yesterday aggregating $137, which, with the $13 handed in the day previous, makes a total tendered through this office of $150. Of this amount $100 was contributed by Messrs. George R. Meneely & Son, of West Troy, New York, proprietors Atlanta Brass foundry. These generous gentlemen telegraphed their agent, Mr. A. B. Bostick, to make this contribution and it was forwarded to the proper authorities in Jacksonville at once. THE CONSTITUTION has received the following:

An error occurred in yesterday's CONSTITUTION, and Henry Durand should be credited with a $5 contribution to the relief fund.

"Draw for $500."

The following telegram explains itself:

ATLANTA, Ga., September 7, 1888.—Mr. James M. Schumacher, President First National Bank, Jacksonville, Fla.: Draw on the Atlanta chamber of commerce for five hundred dollars.

J. G. OGLESBY, President.

They are Satisfied.

Birmingham and Chattanooga will probably rest easier when they hear from their representatives, who were in Atlanta yesterday and who will return to their homes more than ever impressed with the healthfulness of Atlanta.

Dr. Dozier, of Birmingham, visited Atlanta as a representative of the board of health of that city, and made a thorough investigation of the sanitary condition of Atlanta. In addition to this he had a lengthy conference with Dr. Baird, and, in the language of that gentleman, Dr. Dozier is thoroughly satisfied that yellow fever has no present or prospective existence in Atlanta. In other words he is "thoroughly satisfied." This probably means that THE CONSTITUTION was correct in criticising Birmingham when it quarantined against Atlanta.

City Editor Parker, of the Chattanooga Evening News, was also here, and after newspaper man's style he went into thorough investigation of the yellow fever business. Mr. Parker found out, to his entire satisfaction, that Atlanta is too healthy for Chattanooga or any other town to become suspicious of, and will probably so inform the readers of his paper.

Now, what Atlanta covets is the advertising that such fair investigation as these gentlemen gave the situation will surely produce. And cordial investigation is hereby extended other towns and cities to send their most expert inspectors to this city. It will do them no harm and Atlanta will be glad to entertain them.

So you see we are more anxious for a change even than the farmers. The Lane mills, of New Orleans, offer osnabergs for bagging, and burlaps, in my opinion, would also be an improvement."

"Whence, then, comes the objection to cotton bagging?"

"From Liverpool, where the requirement of jute bagging is made, but I see that the Liverpool traders are willing to relax the rule, so that those who want to try cotton bagging can do so."

"What is the rule about insuring cotton?"

"The warehouseman either insures it on his own risk, or in trust for each customer. Under the latter form each farmer can present cotton baled to suit himself, and thus find out that insurance will be issued to him as readily on cotton bagging as on jute."

"Do you regulate the warehouses?"

"For the purpose of increasing security against loss we have a lower rate for standard warehouses than for those not standard. Seeing the difficulty of getting secure bagging, we turned our attention to the warehouses. An open warehouse, with 25,000 bales of cotton stored in it, would be a certain prey for total destruction. Every bale in sight would go. We planned a standard warehouse, divided into small compartments, thus decreasing risks, upon which a lower rate is given. There is no business to which more scientific attention is given than that of insurance."

"So farmers need have no hesitation, on the score of insurance, in using cotton bagging?"

"No, they need have no fear. We shall certainly help the farmer in every way, and risks will be taken as readily on anything else as on jute."

The importance of these declarations cannot be over-estimated. They mean that cotton baled in any manner so as to be merchantable will be promptly insured. This removes one of the strongest objections warehousemen could have against taking such cotton. The Liverpool men, according to advices from Washington, will not insist on jute.

Therefore, use cotton bagging when you can get it.

Storm the fort and victory will come to the farmer.

JUST ONE ITEM A DAY.

A gentleman says: "Here is a suggestion. Let us unite the Young Men's library and Young Men's Christian association in one building. Let us sell the library building, move the books to the Young Men's Christian association, and employ the surplus over-paying the bonds due on the library to finishing up the Young Men's Christian association. Then make the library a part of the Young Men's Christian association and free to its members. It will make a good institution. The day of pay libraries is over. Cheap publications have killed them. For $4, the annual dues of our library, you can buy forty standard books in Lovell's or Franklin Square. This is more than the average reader uses, and at the end of the year he owns the books."

ATLANTA'S AID.

The Contributions to the Jacksonville Relief Fund.

The Chamber of Commerce Will Honor a Draft for $500—The Constitution's Statement.

It was dull, rainy and disagreeable yesterday, but the soliciting committee appointed by the Atlanta chamber of commerce secured a nice starter in the way of subscription to the relief fund.

It goes without saying that Atlanta will do her share toward relieving the distress that the epidemic has brought to the fair southern city. There is no necessity for elaboration on this statement, and as figures speak louder than words, The Constitution will permit them to tell the story when the grand total of Atlanta's contribution is made up.

Below is a partial list of yesterday's subscriptions to the Atlanta chamber of commerce relief fund. Several lists in the hands of different members of the committee have not yet been reported on, but will be added tomorrow, and appear in Sunday's issue of The Constitution. All citizens and business men desiring to add their help to this good cause will please send in their names and amounts to the chairman, Mr. E. P. Chamberlin, or to either of the following members of the committee: M. C. Kiser, T. L. Langston, T. J. Hightower, Henry Boylston, Aaron Haas, John R. Gramling, Charles S. Kingsberry.

Received by the Constitution.

The Constitution received subscriptions yesterday aggregating $137, which, with the $13 handed in the day previous, makes a total tendered through this office of $150. Of this amount $100 was contributed by Messrs. George R. Meneely & Son, of West Troy, New York, proprietors Atlanta Brass foundry. These generous gentlemen telegraphed their agent, Mr. A. B. Bostick, to make this contribution and it was forwarded to the proper authorities in Jacksonville at once. The Constitution has received the following:

Geo. R. Meneely & Son, West Troy, N. Y., through A. B. Bostick	$100 00
M. M. Mauck	10 00
C. A. Collier	10 00
Mrs. John T. Grant	5 00
J. T. Holleyman	5 00
J. H. Rucker	5 00
Cash	1 00

Total	$137 00
Acknowledged yesterday	13 00
	$150 00
Forwarded—G. R. Meneely & Co.	100 00
Balance	$50 00

Added to the amount reported by the chamber of commerce, The Constitution's receipt of $150 makes a total of $831.50, which will be greatly increased by the contributions today.

An error occurred in yesterday's Constitution, and Henry Durand should be credited with a $5 contribution to the relief fund.

"Draw for $500."

The following telegram explains itself:

Atlanta, Ga., September 7, 1888.—Mr. James M. Schumacher, President First National Bank, Jacksonville, Fla.: Draw on the Atlanta chamber of commerce for five hundred dollars.
J. G. Oglesby, President.

They are Satisfied.

Birmingham and Chattanooga will probably rest easier when they hear from their representatives, who were in Atlanta yesterday, and who will return to their homes more than ever impressed with the healthfulness of Atlanta.

Dr. Dozier, of Birmingham, visited Atlanta as a representative of the board of health of that city, and made a thorough investigation of the sanitary condition of Atlanta. In addition to this he had a lengthy conference with Dr. Baird, and, in the language of that gentleman, Dr. Dozier is thoroughly satisfied that yellow fever has no present or prospective existence in Atlanta. In other words he is "thoroughly satisfied." This probably means that The Constitution was correct in criticising Birmingham when it quarantined against Atlanta.

City Editor Parker, of the Chattanooga Evening News, was also here, and after a newspaper man's style he went into a thorough investigation of the yellow fever business. Mr. Parker found out, to his entire satisfaction, that Atlanta is too healthy for Chattanooga or any other town to become suspicious of, and will probably so inform the readers of his paper.

Now, what Atlanta covets is the advertising that such fair investigation as these gentlemen gave the situation will surely produce. And a cordial investigation is hereby extended other towns and cities to send their most expert inspectors to this city. It will do them no harm and Atlanta will be glad to entertain them.

Still Locked In.

With the exception of one or two south Florida points, the people of that state are cut off from all chance of exit. The rigid rules of Surgeon-General Hamilton are still in force, and there is no travel this way from infected points. A few arrivals from south Florida constituted the only addition to Atlanta's colony, and the situation is unchanged.

My oath of office is to enforce the ordinances as I find them. It is not the policemen who should exercise discretion, but the members of the council. I take it for granted that when the council passes an ordinance it has been after careful consideration."

"That reminds me," he continued, "of a case today. A good-looking young man came up to me and asked me to buy a watch on the installment plan. He talked beautifully for twenty minutes, and when he got through I said to him: 'I do not care about looking at your watch, but I would like to see your license.' He had none, so I marched him down to Clerk Goldsmith's office."

A SERIOUS CHARGE.

A Patrolman to be Tried Upon an Unusual Charge.

Patrolman Charles M. Hudson was suspended yesterday. His club, pistol, and all insignia of his position were taken from him.

The charge is a grave one and people that know the patrolman and his record are slow to believe it. He has made a good policeman.

The story is this:

Sunday night three young men, one of them a clerk in Steve Grady's barroom on Alabama street, stopped in the barroom about half past ten o'clock.

They were just ready to come out when the clerk stepped to the door to see if a policeman was in sight. Patrolman Hudson was standing within a few feet of the door, and the trio were compelled to wait.

A few minutes later the patrolman came to the door, looked up and down the streets, took a bunch of keys from his pockets, and began trying to fit a key in the door. He worked for several minutes. There had been no light in the barroom and the patrolman's actions did not indicate that he was after anybody.

After trying all his keys and finding none to fit the patrolman went to the next door, Mickleberry's bar, and began fitting in keys.

The young men became satisfied that something was wrong, and suddenly opened the front door of Grady's bar and came out.

The patrolman quickly took the key from the door, put the keys in his pocket, and walked away quickly.

That's only one side of the story. The unusual nature of the charge makes Hudson's associates unwilling to believe it, but the matter has been investigated and the patrolman suspended.

He will be tried before the commissioners at their meeting Monday night. At the same time Patrolmen Cochran and Tony Linam will be tried upon trivial charges.

Patrolmen Starnes, Cain and Carlyle will hand in their clubs at the same meeting. They resign to take other positions.

It is understood that objection will be made to Officer Starnes's resignation upon the ground that he has all the while been running a meat market in violation of the ordinance. The patrolman states that the market was not his own.

THE WORLD OF SPORT.

Bad Blood Between Professional Wheelmen—The Baseball Games.

Buffalo, N. Y., September 7.—[Special.]—There were no bicycle races today. Tomorrow closes the world's tournament. It is raining hard tonight and the track will likely be bad. All the interest centers in the world championship. There is bad blood between the professionals, and Rowe and Temple have been calling each other everything they could think of. It grew out of the close decisions between Temple and Rowe and Knapp and Rowe, by which, in both instances, Rowe came out ahead. In the second heat of the big race yesterday Rowe won on Temple's foul and that did settle it. As they left the track Rowe gave Temple a fearful smash in the face.

Crocker won the three mile heat, Rowe second. In the five mile heat Rowe got there on the foul, and the decision gave Crocker second place. The two are now equal, and tomorrow's mile race is likely to be a long sprint. It is predicted that it will be the greatest race the world has ever seen, and if one or the other or both of the contestants do not get hurt through the scheming of the friends of the other it will be a wonder.

BASEBALL YESTERDAY.

The Athletics Pushing St. Louis for First Place in the Association.

The games played yesterday resulted as follows:

At Chicago—Chicago 11, Boston 9. Basehits—Chicago 17, Boston 13. Errors—Chicago 3, Boston 7. Batteries—Baldwin and Daley, Clarkson and Kelly.

At Philadelphia—Athletic 7, Kansas City 1. Basehits—Athletic 12, Kansas City 7. Errors—Athletic 3, Kansas City 4. Batteries—Seward and Robinson, Sullivan and Brennan.

At Brooklyn—Louisville 5, Brooklyn 8. Basehits—Louisville 6, Brooklyn 9. Errors—Louisville 6, Brooklyn 3. Batteries—Ewing and Vaughn, Foutz and Clark.

At Indianapolis—Indianapolis 2, New York 3. Basehits—Indianapolis 8, New York 5. Errors—Indianapolis 2, New York 2. Batteries—Shreve and Buckley, Keefe and Brown.

Yesterday rain postponed the Detroit-Washington game at Detroit, the Philadelphia-Pittsburg game at Pittsburg, the Cleveland-Cincinnati game at Cleveland, the Baltimore-St. Louis game at Baltimore, and the second Athletic-Kansas City game at Philadelphia. There will be two games today at Philadelphia, Baltimore, Detroit, Pittsburg and Cleveland.

Judge Nisbet says that Stephen A. Douglas had a throat affection, and when he was about to begin his famous canvass of the United States the doctors advised him not to speak. They said that he would tear his throat to pieces. Douglas made the canvass but saved his throat. He used his abdominal muscles in speaking, and, though his tone was peculiar, he made himself heard without trouble. This is a good hint to public speakers.

AT THE COURTHOUSE.

The Arguments Finished in the Insurance Case.

The Jury Out and No Verdict Last Night—The Judge's Charge—The Cases in the City Court—A Whisky Case.

The argument on the great insurance case was finished yesterday. Judge Hillyer concluded his argument yesterday morning, and was followed by Mr. Hoke Smith. The judge's charge was finished before 5 o'clock, and until late last night the jury were still in consultation, but without any prospect of a verdict by this morning.

In the City Court.

The following cases were disposed of yesterday in the city court, Judge Van Epps, presiding:

Henry Love was found guilty of larceny from the house and sentenced for five months, or $25.

Will Agnew was given twelve months.

Joe Johnson, charged with selling spirituous liquors without a license, was found guilty by the jury. His sentence was $100 and three months.

Fill Tell, charged with larceny from the house, was found guilty and given $50 or six months.

Will Coosey is an escaped convict. T. J. Donaldson was prosecutor. For his break from the camps Coosey was given five months in addition to his present sentence.

Jim Blackman was convicted of throwing rocks at a train on the Central railroad on the 27th of August. His sentence was twelve months.

Westley Westbrook, charged with larceny from the house, was found guilty and given six months or $50.

About the Steps.

The civil docket will be taken up in city court Monday. There will be no more criminal cases until October.

Yesterday during the trial of Joe Johnson, charged with selling whisky without a license, a negro witness was asked if he had not seen a kega t Johnson's house.

"No, sir," he replied, in a puzzled tone.

"Didn't you say you saw a keg there?"

"No, sir."

"Well, what did you see?"

"I saw some bottles, an' some jugs an' a kag."

"That's what I say; you saw a keg. Now, how much did that keg hold?"

"I didn' see no keg, sir." The darkey was evidently in earnest, and considerably puzzled.

"Did you see a keg there?"

"No, sir."

"Did you see a kag there?"

"Yes, sir; some bottles, an' some jugs an' a ten-gallon kag."

CITY HALL NOTES.

Interesting Items Gathered in the Various Departments Yesterday.

Surveyor Clayton will return home this afternoon.

City Attorney Goodwin is now on his way toward the Pacific slope.

The elevator is all right again. It is said to be one of the safest elevators in the city.

Councilman Martin Amorous has been "doing" the national capital.

Who will be clerk of the market commission? The candidates will probably be plentiful as soon as the commission is organized.

The board of health usually holds its meetings in the mayor's office, but Mayor Cooper being absent, yesterday's meeting was held in Dr. Baird's office.

Mayor Pro. Tempore Collier has not been weighed with down municipal burdens since Mayor Cooper went away. He is equal to any emergency which may arise, however.

Tax Collector Griffin received over $6,000 in cash yesterday from the tax payers. It is the best day he has thus far had. He makes returns twice every day to City Treasurer Farrer, at the Merchants' bank. This bank is the repository of the city's money. From now till the 20th of this month people will be eager to pay their taxes.

"The weather has saved the city some money this week," remarked Clarence Moore. "Yes," joined in Commissioner Mahoney, "the rain has interfered with the work on the streets, and the hands have not put in full time. There is one consolation, however, the heavy rains have flushed the sewers and have cleansed the city. It looks as if we will have good weather next week."

"What is Mayor Cooper doing in Boston?" This question was asked many times yesterday, but nobody could answer it. The very bright and amiable young lady who is Mayor Cooper's chief clerk, was asked and her answer was: "I really cannot say. I do not believe anybody knows. I suspect, however, that Mayor Cooper has some important business to attend to. He will probably be absent at least a week."

"I had a most enjoyable visit to the Cincinnati exposition," said Major Sidney Root yesterday afternoon. "I was delighted with the extent and variety of the exhibition. I tell you it is a considerable affair. Cincinnati is a fine city. I like the people very much. I found that everybody had heard about Atlanta and spoke pleasantly about the gate city. The truth is, Atlanta is wonderfully advertised. I think anyone will be amply repaid for his trouble and expense if he will go to the Cincinnati exposition. Electricity is everywhere in Cincinnati. The electric display is the finest ever made anywhere. But I am glad to get back home. I shall be out at the park by daylight tomorrow morning."

PERSONAL.

Mr. W. C. Morris and lady, of Cleveland, Tenn., reached Atlanta yesterday, where they will hereafter reside. Mr. Morris lived in Atlanta four years ago, and comes back to Atlanta to make it his home—fully convinced that there is no place like Atlanta. Mr. Charles Morris, of the Markham, and Mr. Ed. Morris, postoffice delivery clerk, are Mr. W. C. Morris's sons.

Miss Annie Hunnewell has returned home, after a delightful visit to Miss Imogene Griggs, of West Point.

Mrs. W. B. Sheldon is again at home, visiting her mother, Mrs. Hunnewell.

Master T. B. Hunnewell leaves today for college in North Carolina, where he has been for the past two years.

Dr. J. S. Hopkins, president school of technology, will preach at Dr. Barnett's church, First Presbyterian, Marietta street, Sunday, 11 a. m.

"The Richard."

"The Richard" is the name of a new hat brought out by our enterprising and popular young clothiers and hatters, Messrs. Fetzer & Pharr. This hat they show in all popular shapes and colors, such as Dunlap's, Youman's and Miller's blocks, in black, brown and loutre. They have handled the hat for years and know what it is, and guarantee every hat to wear equal to and give the satisfaction of any five dollar hat. Price $4. They also show a nobby little English hat with a wide band, which is positively the newest and prettiest thing out in hats. See them.

SEVENTY-SEVEN CASES.

A Refuge in North Carolina.

Raleigh, N. C., September 7.—[Special.]—This morning Governor Scales received telegrams from a number of prominent physicians of the state in reply to his inquiries, made yesterday, as to the advisability of throwing open western North Carolina to refugees from the yellow fever district. A council of state was called together by the governor this morning and all the telegrams were laid before them.

At noon the governor sent the following telegram to Dr. Neal Mitchell, president of the Jacksonville, Florida, board of health:

After due consideration by the governor and council of state, you are informed that they have no authority in the premises, but that authority and responsibility rests with the county board of health and town authorities.

Governor Scales said to your correspondent that this conclusion had been arrived at after a careful examination of the law, which confers no authority upon the governor, but rests it all in county boards of health and municipal authorities.

The opinion of the attorney-general was given in the matter. It is believed that nothing will impede the action of those counties in the Blue Ridge section which have thrown open their doors to the refugees. Murphy has taken this action. The town of Henderson has also opened its doors to people from Jacksonville, and a number have already arrived there.

Fever in Baker County.

Jacksonville, Fla., September 7.—Reports heretofore without confirmation that yellow fever was raging at McClenny, on the F. R. & N. road, thirty miles west of this city, were confirmed today. About twenty-five cases have been reported from there as dengue fever, but there have been three or four deaths, it is clamed, from malarial fever. McClenny is a town of 200 or 300 people, the county seat of Baker county.

Pensacola and Montgomery, Ala., have quarantined against Baker county. Escambia county has also quarantined against McClenny and all of Baker county east of the St. Mary's river, on account of the alleged existence of yellow fever there.

Riots in Fernandina.

Jacksonville, Fla., September 7.—The longshoremen's strike in Fernandina resulted in a violent demonstration yesterday. The governor ordered the state troops there from Gainesville and Ocala, and called out also the Nassau company of Fernandina. ROYAL BAKING POWDER.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

ABSOLUTELY PURE.

For quick raising, the Royal Baking Powder is superior to all other leavening agents. It is absolutely pure and wholesome and of the highest leavening power. It is always uniform in strength and quality and never fails to make light, sweet, most palatable and nutritive food. Bread, biscuits, muffins, cake, etc., raised with Royal Baking Powder may be eaten hot without distressing results to the most delicate digestive organs. It will keep in any climate without deterioration.

Prof. H. A. Mott, U. S. Government Chemist, after examining officially the principal baking powders of the country, reported:

"The Royal Baking Powder is absolutely pure, for I have so found it in many tests made both for that company and the United States Government.

"Because of the facilities that company have for obtaining perfectly pure cream of tartar, and for other reasons dependent upon the proper proportions of the same, and the method of its preparation, the Royal Baking Powder is undoubtedly the purest and most reliable baking powder offered to the public.

PLEASANT VEGETABLE COMPOUND

For the quick cure of all affections of the Throat, Lungs and Pulmonary Diseases.

Read what Hon. JOSEPH E. BROWN, United States Senator from Georgia, has to say about this WONDERFUL CURE:

Atlanta, Ga., February 11, 1888.—To the Hunnicutt Rheumatic Cure Company:

Gentlemen—I have been troubled with Bronchitis and occasional Sore Throat, with severe Cough, for a number of years past, and I have tried a great many of the most popular remedies known to the public or the profession, some mitigating the disease more and some less. I was finally induced to try the preparation known as HUNNICUTT'S THROAT AND LUNG CURE, which I have used frequently of late, and I find it a most excellent medicine.

Indeed, I do not hesitate to say that I have derived more benefit from it than I have from any or all the other preparations.

In case of Sore Throat it is especially fine. When in that condition I sip about a teaspoonful at a time every hour or so, keeping the throat lubricated with it, with very satisfactory results.

It has another excellence in my case: It never produces nausea, but acts rather as a tonic.

Very truly, etc.,
JOSEPH E. Brown.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Stocks as Reported at the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, September 7.—The stock market was again active, and during the entire day, except the first half hour, was strong, leaving prices again materially higher than last evening's figures. Bears renewed their attack of yesterday and succeeded in making considerable impression upon a few stocks, though the movement was of short duration. There was very little animation in the list outside of stocks attacked by the bears, until the pressure was removed, efforts to get prices down being concentrated upon St. Paul, Lackawanna, Western Union and Reading. The heaviest drive was made at Lackawanna, and outside that stock the result was fractional only, while the short interest was again increased. After the termination of the raid generally the list became more active and new favorites came to the front while a more decidedly strong tone was developed than has been seen for the past few days, Villard stocks, Norfolk and Western preferred, Tennessee Coal and Gould shares in turn leading the advance. The movement in Tennessee Coal was the most pronounced feature of the day, and with the announcement that the preferred stock had been all taken up there was talk of a dividend. Norfolk and Western preferred also moved up rapidly under the expectation that something will soon be done in the East Tennessee matter which will result to the advantage of the company. The greatest interest in transactions of the day, however, was in Lackawanna and St. Paul, and though feeling on the latter has been very bearish for some time it was taken freely today and closed with a handsome advance over its last evening's price. Lackawanna was more sluggish in the rise, though it recovered all its loss, which was the greatest of all in the early dealings. The close was fairly active and strong at the highest prices of the day, though there was a slight reaction in the last few minutes. The day's business amounted to 272,000 shares. The active list is almost invariably higher this evening, though the gains are generally for fractional amounts. Tennessee Coal, however, rose 2¼, Norfolk and Western preferred 1⅞, Northern Pacific preferred 1⅛ and Texas Pacific 1 per cent.

NEW YORK, September 7—Hubbard, Price & Co., in their cotton circular today, say: Some disappointment was felt on our exchange this morning at what was considered unsatisfactory Liverpool reports and our opening prices were in sympathy. The market today has wavered in proportion to the amount of credence which was given to the rumors of storm damage throughout the south. At one time prices showed considerable improvement, which was lost before the end of the day, although the close was steady. Our own advices, particularly from South Carolina and Alabama, indicate serious damage by the rains, though its extent may be, and probably is, overestimated. The weather is offering a strong barrier to prompt movements of the crop, and good grades are becoming scarcer and scarcer daily and will soon be quite inadequate to the demand.

NEW YORK, September 7—[Special.]—Henry Clews & Co.'s circular: The market for futures in Liverpool this morning was hardly up to the expectations, and the demand here, at opening, was freely met with sales to realize on recent purchases. This was more than the market would take, and the decline which followed brought out some stop orders, and, for a time, the market was quite weak, but light receipts and a fresh buying order called a halt and the decline was about recovered. The interior movement is quite light, being about 25 per cent of last year. This, with reports of bad weather, gave the bulls renewed courage. The telegram of today, we think, give exaggerated reports of the damage and situation. There is no doubt that the staple is in a position favorable to the bulls, and there is a fair undertone with sentiment in favor of prices being freely maintained for the present.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, September 7.—Operators in wheat had something to talk about today. It was published in the report that the Minnesota Warehouse commissioners had lowered the grade of number one hard by the admission of such per centage of frosted wheat as to amount to the wiping out of old grade number one hard, and allowing number one northern to be delivered on contracts based on the former. Some persons on the 'Change claimed that they had dispatches from the northwest showing that the action of the commissioners was misunderstood, and that there was no real change over which to be alarmed. There were also conflicting advices as to what the commissioners had and had not done, which kept the market in an excited and nervous state, causing prices to bob up and down without any apparent cause. It did frighten prices in northwestern markets at the opening. Here prices opening ⅜c lower, were with easy cables and free offering by longs. The market was bulged a little early after it had shown weakness, presumably by longs, who wanted hard spot to sell on. Whatever shorts were out got under cover and prices went off under the deluge of long wheat about 1⅛c, But just when it looked most like a decided break there was a rally of ⅜c. October sold from 93⅛c to 93⅜c, off to 92⅞c, and up to 92¾c about noon. December 94⅛c to 94¼c, and up to 94¾c, then down to 93⅝c, with a rally to 94⅛c. May sold sold down to 93¼c and rallied. December wheat closed at 1 p. m. at 94c.

If it was doubted before that there was large short interest in corn here, especially among the receiving houses, it was made quite clear today. The feature of the market was an unusual demand for cash corn, which sent the price up about 1¼c. September sold up to 45⅞c, closing at 46c. October sold at 45c and 45¾c, closing at 45⅝c bid. December and May closed at 39⅞c.

Oats were very steady and a trifle stronger, with an improvement of ⅛c@¼c.

Provisions were quiet and uninteresting, and fluctuations were within a narrow range. There was an early weakness on yellow fever in pork, lard and ribs sympathizing a little, and October pork opened $13.95, or 15c lower than yesterday's close. This proved the lowest price of the day, and there was subsequently some improvement. At 1 o'clock October pork stood at $14, an January at $13.77½, a loss of 10c on near futures, and 2½c on January during the long session. Lard was nearly steady, closing about where it did at 1 o'clock yesterday. January rested at $8.25. Short ribs declined 7½c on near by months, closing at $8.35 and $7.02½ for October and January.

The late cables were strong, and at the afternoon session wheat advanced ⅜c. Corn was active for the near futures and firm. Oats were in light request and steady. Pork was nominally unchanged for near futures and 2½c higher for January. Lard advanced 2½c for September and October, and ruled a shade easier for January. Short ribs were unchanged for September and October, and 2½c higher for January.

The following was the range in the leading futures in Chicago today:

GEORGE EDDLEMAN

Tells Why He Carried the Fatal Pistol.

He Talks to a Constitution Reporter on the Tragedy—How He Spends His Time in Prison.

"Can I see Mr. George Eddleman?" asked representative of THE CONSTITUTION of Jailer Poole yesterday afternoon as he met him in the ante-chamber of the county jail.

"Not unless he is willing to see you," replied the jailer. "He has been worried so much by newspaper men, who tried to entrap him into an interview, that he does not like to receive them. I will see him, and if he is willing to give you an audience you can go into his cell."

In a few minutes the reporter was ushered into the presence of the slayer of Tom Gresham. He was dressed in a plain but neat suit, and was standing near the door watching the prisoners, who were disporting themselves in various ways in the large, open hall. The antics of some of the gamins so amused him that he was laughing as the reporter was presented.

"How are you, Mr. Eddleman? You certainly look well. Apparently you are some stouter than when you were first brought here," was the reporter's salutation.

"Thank you, I am very well," replied the prisoner, "but I seem stouter than I really am. I doubt if I weigh as much as I did when I was first imprisoned. My flesh is not so solid as it was. This is because I have had no outdoor exercise. You know I am a man who always passed much of his time out of doors. My business was such as to keep me in the streets a good deal, and I was accustomed to an active mode of life. I have some opportunities here for exercise, but it is not like being out in the open air."

"Whose crutches are those in the corner?"

"They are mine, and I have found them necessary at times. My leg has given me considerable trouble. In my fight with Gresham I received several severe kicks on my lame leg and since then I have at times found my leg so weak that I had to use the crutches."

"What have you to say about the way you are treated, Mr. Eddleman?"

"I have no complaints to make. Jailer Poole is a big-hearted man who has contributed in many ways to render my stay here as comfortable as possible. He allows me all the privileges and liberties he can, consistently with a proper discharge of his official duties. I do not mean to say that I am a privileged character, for Mr. Poole is an impartial officer. He gives me the freedom of the corridor so that I can take exercise. Then he permits me to have an interview with my wife every day. He allows me to go out into his room to meet her, and does not subject her to the mortification of coming into my cell."

"You receive a good many visitors, do you not?"

"Yes; my friends have not neglected me. They often visit me and I enjoy these visits exceedingly. Their presence is cheering and reassuring. They express the confident expectation that I will be able to show my innocence at the trial. My lawyers, too, frequently call. I have never for one moment lost heart. The consciousness of my innocence has upheld me and driven off fits of depression, and the hope and firm conviction that I will be able to prove my innocence at the trial has sustained me and kept off the blues."

"You do not dread the trial?"

"No, I do not. I rather look forward to it. Of course, to be tried for your life is a dreadful ordeal for any one to pass through; but I anticipate it with a certain degree of pleasure, knowing that my acquittal will be a complete vindication, and that those who are now censuring me will commend my course. I am aware of the fact that the public mind has been terribly excited; that the publications in the press have prejudiced the mass of people against me. Having heard only one side of the case, people were quick to conclude that I murdered Tom Gresham, and it will be hard to divest them of thees prejudices. I do not wish to say any harsh things about the newspapers, for I have no idea that they intended to inflame the public mind and arouse a feeling of hostility; but I realize how much harm the published reports have done. I am told by some of my friends that the excitement has pretty well died out and that I can reasonably expect a perfectly fair trial. My lawyers tell me that my trial will take place at the present term of court."

"Do you object to stating your reasons for expecting an acquittal?"

"Of course I must not say anything regarding the theory of my defense, or indeed enter into the details of the killing, but I do not mind telling you that we intend to prove a clear case of self-defense. I expect to be able to show that my life was in imminent peril, that had I not shot Gresham the instant I did, my wife would today be a widow. This we confidently expect to establish by competent witnesses."

"What about your being armed at the time?"

"I am glad you have asked me this question, for it gives me an opportunity to set myself right regarding the carrying of a pistol. It was not my habit to go armed. I never made a practice of carrying concealed weapons, and it was an accident that I had my pistol that afternoon. As you know, I lived a considerable distance from town—away beyond Georgia avenue. My path home lay in a deserted section, which at night was always dark and gloomy. A number of people had been attacked and robbed by tramps and footpads. I myself had been robbed two years before of a valuable gold watch. My business sometimes kept me in town till night, and I regarded it as a wise precaution to go armed whenever I had to go home after dark. That morning I had brought my pistol, knowing that I had a great deal of business before me and would probably be detained till late. It was my habit to put my pistol in the drawer as soon as I entered the office. That morning, however, I was so busy that I failed to do it and carried the pistol, forgetting all about it. While Gresham and I were locked in a terrible struggle and he was about to kill me. I then thought of my pistol, and fortunately for me, it was in my pocket. It seemed providential. Had I done as was my custom, and left my pistol at the office, I would never have come out of that barroom a live man. No, I never did make a practice of carrying a pistol; I carried it only for self-protection at night."

"What is that badge, Mr. Eddleman?" asked the reporter as he saw a silver badge attached to his vest.

"That is my badge as a member of the Confederate Veterans' association of Fulton county. I have been a member of this organization since it was started."

Mr. Eddleman talked in a cheerful vein and manifested no anxiety about his approaching trial. He was interrupted by the entrance of the turnkey, who informed him that his wife was in the outer room waiting for him.

Thus ended the interview, and the reporter took his departure.

THE STYLE.

The Knox Hat to be Worn This Season—A Point About Them.

"Yes, sir," said a fashionable young man yesterday afternoon, "the Knox hat will be all the rage this season. It is one of the finest and most suitable hats ever worn, and in my opinion will last for several seasons. It has no competitor as to its finish and general style and will sell rapidly. "Yes, I had heard about that hat," said another, "and went to Schaffner & Swift, on Peachtree, opposite National hotel, and got one and it is a daisy, too. Schaffner & Swift sell them very low and have a fine stock of them. You had better go and get one; you will look so much handsomer."

The Edgewood minstrels have completed all necessary arrangements for their Newnan trip, and the boys are jubilant over the outlook. The company is in excellent condition, and has greatly improved since last season. If they don't make a decided impression on the Newnan people it will be because they can't appreciate a good show.

Colonel Sykes was sitting by the fire and said; "If I cannot get Grand Republic Cigarros and Buffos to smoke I will quit the business. Sold by all reliable dealers.

What a Prominent Norfolk Physician Says.

NORFOLK, Va., September 4, 1888.—Mr. James E. Scott—Dear Sir: I purchased of you a pair of the celebrated spectacles and a pair of patent eye glasses made by A. K. Hawkes, of Atlanta, Ga., for whom you are agent, and have no hesitation in saying that they give me more comfort in reading, less weariness from long continued use and greater clearness of vision than any I ever before used.

I feel sure this will be the experience of every one who uses them. RICHARD P. WALTON, M. D.

NUMBER 5.

That is Harralson Bros. & Co.'s New Office.

It is 5 Pryor Street, in the Kimball House Building, Just 3 Doors Above Main Entrance.

September is here. Several changes have been made. Offices were being torn down and put up all day yesterday. Harralson Bros. & Co., the big tobacco and cigar dealers, have moved from their old stand on East Alabama street to No. 5 South Pryor, in the Kimball house. Their friends and customers will please take notice of the change. Another thing the public is requested to consider, and that is, the superiority of the brands of cigars and tobaccos this house handle. Who has not heard of the "Rabbit Foot" and "Three Kings" cigars, made famous by their merit and large sales? Harralson Bros. & Co. handle these. The firm is also sole agent for Reynold's popular tobaccos, Maid of Athens and R. J. R. No chewing tobacco in America is its superior.

Remember these facts.

Remember the number of their new office.

Remember Harralson Bros. & Co. is the place to get fine cigars and tobaccos, both at wholesale.

Recollect, the number of the store is 5 South Pryor street, in the Kimball house.

My friend, if you are not satisfied with the cigar you are smoking, buy a Grand Republic Cigarro or Buffo and note the difference. Sold by all reliable dealers.

CELERY! CELERY! CELERY!

Fresh Prunes, Fresh Jordan Shelled Almonds.

We are prepared for the Jewish holidays. Have just received fresh raisins, fancy quality prunes, Jordan shelled almonds, fat smoked salmon steak, Holland herring, smoked Yarmouth bloaterst imported dill pickles and extra quality sweitzer and limberger cheese.

On account of the present high prices ruling on salmon in cans, you have no doubt noticed the inferior quality being sold. We wish to state that we have the finest quality canned salmon to be found in the market. We have contracted for the whole production of butter made at Dr. Alexander's farm, and we guarantee it to be the finest sold in the city If you want anything specially nice, call for one pound.

For the next few days we will have on hand the choicest quality white celery, either by the dozen or stalk. Send us your orders for these goods.

Just in, a fresh invoice of large, fine Irish potatoes and yellow Danver onions. Also a fresh stock of the famous Thurbers deep sea codfish. These are all desirous goods and cheap.

Come over and see our own importation of Fry's premium cocoas and chocolates, and our fancy Alphonse pinard-pack of Hoyt & Thorn's imported French petit pois and mushrooms.

We save you 20 per cent and give you fresher goods. Remember our number, 90 Whitehall.

BEWARE OF THE KNIFE,
Ye Poor Sufferers of Rectal Diseases.

But come and investigate the merits of a perfectly painless system of RECTAL TREATMENT as practiced by me, and learn to shun and abhor the antiquated method of the knife, which either kills right out or makes the victims of the cruel system suffer the pangs of the damned while life lasts.

Hundreds of patients have been under my treatment in this city for piles, protruding and bleeding, as well as internal piles, without one moment's loss of time from their business, and with infallible success in every instance.

The same happy results have accompanied my treatment for all other rectal diseases and FISTULA IN ANO.

This dreaded bugbear yields like a charm to a perfectly painless procedure which has never failed to cure when patiently persevered in, undisturbed by internecidices. I extend a cordial invitation to all who may need my services in this specialty, and have the indorsement of many of our best citizens, to some of which I have been known for nearly forty years. Notice my address,

Of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen

Has Arrived in the City—The Convention Next Week—Chief Arthur to be Here and Federation to be Considered.

Frank P. Sargent, Terre Haute, Indiana.

That is the way the grand master of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen registered at the Kimball house last evening.

Mr. Sargent is accompanied by his wife, and is here to look after the details for the entertainment of the members of his organization, who will meet in this city, in biennial session, on Monday next.

A CONSTITUTION reporter called upon Grand Master Sargent at the Kimball, and was courteously received by the representative officer of 20,000 men. Mr. Sargent is a handsome and attractive gentleman, of magnificent physique, and looking every inch fit to occupy his present responsible position. In a brief interview with the reporter he showed a thorough knowledge of the affairs of his organization, as well as extensive information on topics of general interest.

In answer to the reporter's request for anything that would prove of general interest in connection with the coming convention of the Brotherhood of Firemen, Mr. Sargent said:

"The larger part of the delegation that will attend this meeting will arrive in Atlanta on Sunday next. They will come in a special train of five Pullman sleepers, which will run through to Atlanta solid. The delegates from the south and southwest will all be here on Sunday in time for the opening exercises of the convention."

"Have you seen the programme that has been arranged for the opening day?" asked the reporter.

"Oh, yes. I am gratified at the arrangements that have been made, and I see that we will be honored with addresses from the governor, the mayor of your city, and others, and I judge from this that our Atlanta meeting will be a very successful one."

"Is this your first visit to Atlanta, Mr. Sargent?"

"No, sir. I have been here two or three times previous to this trip, and I must say that I have always had pleasant experiences and found the people of Atlanta very generous and hospitable. Taking these things altogether I feel certain that this convention will be a very notable one. We intend to make as favorable impression on the people as is possible, for we very much desire to interest everyone—firemen, of course, first—in our organization and its aims."

"What are the main features of your organization?"

"Mutual protection and aid and the cementing of friendship by the ties of brotherly interest. These and the insurance features form the basis of our organization."

"How many delegates will be in attendance at this meeting?"

"There will be about 360 delegates, but I am informed that a great number of them will be accompanied by their wives, so that there will be nearly 700 visitors in the city on Monday directly interested in our convention, for of course our wives and families are interested in whatever action we take." And as he said this Mrs. Sargent smiled an assent to her husband's opinion.

"What is the membership of your organization, Mr. Sargent?"

"We have a membership of 20,000 at present and are growing daily. Two years ago, at our last session, which was held in Minneapolis, we had an enrolled membership of about 16,000, so you will see that our increase has been over 4,000 in that time. That is a good showing, but we expect to do still better in the coming two years."

"What will be the principal business before the organization at this convention?"

"Well, an election of officers for the next term of two years will be one of our first duties. The next important matter will be the question of federation or amalgamation of our organization with the brotherhood of engineers and the brakemen and switchmen who have strong organizations. The object of this federation would be to insure the aid and co-operation of these organizations in the event of a strike or other trouble with the railroads. Another important matter that will come before this convention will be the districting of our organization, and a reduction of the number of delegates entitled to representation at our biennial sessions. As it is now each subordinate lodge is entitled to one delegate, which would give us a body of 388 men, entirely too large to handle well in convention. It is proposed to reduce the representation so that there will be about fifty delegates. These are the principal matters that will come before the convention."

"Mr. Sargent, THE CONSTITUTION printed an interview with a local member of your organization this morning, in which it is stated that the brotherhood will request the managers of roads employing colored firemen to replace them with white men. Is that a correct statement?"

"Some action of that kind will be taken, and it is probable that such a request will be made of the managers of the roads that employ colored men in the capacity of firemen. There are some very good reasons why this should be done, but the principal one in my estimation is this: You know that it is necessary for all roads to have a certain number of firemen in training, so that when they become sufficiently familiar with the running of an engine they may be promoted to the position of engineers. Engineers die just the same as other people, and they get injured, or make a change of roads, and then there are the busy seasons of the year, when it is necessary to press into service everybody who can run an engine. Now I do not believe that the people who travel, or the railroad managers themselves, would give a position of so much importance to a negro. Consequently we think it no more than right that the opportunities for training should be given to white men, as they will fill these positions for all time to come."

"Will Chief Arthur, of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, attend the convention?"

"Yes; and it is worthy of notice that this will be the first visit of Chief Arthur to any convention held by the brotherhood of firemen, and we shall consider it quite an honor. It goes to show that there is a friendly feeling, which is growing stronger between the two organizations and it will probably result in a strong alliance. Chief Arthur will remain in the city until Tuesday as our guest."

"How is the 'Q' strike progressing?"

This question gave Mr. Sargent an excuse for a smile and he took advantage of it. He explained to the reporter by saying: "The strike is still on and just as much of it as there was six months ago. Of the 2,300 men who quit work on that system, but a few stragglers—a very few—have gone back to work. That strike would be settled and the old men go back to work tomorrow, in my opinion, if it were not for the pride of General Manager Stone. Engineers and firemen alike feel proved of the fact that the scheme of the Pinkerton men to bring our organization into ill repute with the people of the country has miserably failed. The men who are on strike are being generously supported, and as this is not much of a drain on our organization, it will be a very long time before the 'Q' road breaks us up."

"What other officers of your organization will attend this convention?"

"Well, there is E. V. Debs, grand secretary, of Terre Haute, Ind., which, by the way, is where our national headquarters are located. Mr. J. J. Hanahan, vice grand master, of Chicago, and the grand executive board, composed of five members. Their names are, H. Walton and J. J. Dahey, of Philadelphia; Frank Hall, of Minneapolis; W. E. Burns, of Chicago, and W. H. McDonough, of Scranton, Penn. The grand trustees will also attend. They are Messrs. C. W. Gardner, of Fort Dodge, Iowa; C. C. Sutherland, of Creston, Iowa, and L. P. Smith, of Chicago."

"Is there anything else of importance in connection with the convention or your organization that you desire to mention?" asked the reporter.

"I believe I have given you everything of interest," said Mr. Sargent, and then quickly added: "Don't forget to mention that after our public opening meeting on Monday that a reception will be tendered Chief Arthur at the Kimball house." And receiving the reporter's assurance that it would receive proper attention, Mr. Sargent said good night.

THE RAINS

Do Much Damage to the Cotton Crop in Georgia.

"Yes," said Mr. R. J. Redding yesterday, "the rains have done considerable damage to the cotton crop. Within the past nine days the rainfall in this vicinity has been 7.83 inches, and I think the rains have been general in Georgia.

"That is about one-seventh of the annual rainfall in nine days.

"I think that the damage to the crop, the state over, will be less than one-tenth.

"The dampness has rotted the bolls, both cracked and uncracked. We have received a number of letters of complaint, and here are some of the bolls which have been sent in.

"The damage, of course, has been greater in the lowlands than the uplands. There is more or less damage in the lowlands every season because of the moisture.

"There is one redeeming feature, however. We have had no winds to blow out the cotton and beat it down into the ground. The loss is due to the rotting caused by continuous rains. There may be damage from overflows, too, but as yet we have heard of none."

Artistic Work.

The most unique specimen of artistic work we have seen for some time is on exhibition at Fetzer & Pharrs.

It is a cane made of accacia wood, and beautifully carved. It was made to order in the city of Mexico for Mr. P. C. Cashman, and sent to him by his friend Mr. W. J. Carpenter, once a citizen of Atlanta, now of El Paso, Texas.

The carving, which is very artistic, represents the coat of arms of the United States, beautifully joined to the coat of arms of Mexico, and underneath the monogram P. C. C. On one side of the stick is a representation of the different stages of a bull fight, and on the other side a train of Pullman cars, speeding along at a rapid rate. The scene is so realistic that you can almost see the train moving.

For Seasickness
Use Horsford's Acid Phosphate.

Dr. W. W. BLACKMAN, Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I am very much pleased with it in sea sickness. Several cases have been brought to my attention where it afforded prompt and entire relief."

No one knows better than those who have used Carter's Little Liver Pills what relief they have given when taken for dyspepsia, dizziness, pain in the side, constipation, disordered stomach, etc. Try them.

Married.

On Thursday evening last at 8 o'clock a quiet but very happy marriage took place at the residence of the bride's stepmother, Mrs. G. A. Holloway, 211 Crew street. The contracting parties were Mr. H. H. Goldsmith and Miss Bena Holloway, both well known in this city and very popular, the Rev. Dr. McDonald officiating. Many were the congratulations extended the happy couple by their numerous friends.

From Childhood Upward, far beyond middle age, the teeth will remain strong and white if standard SOZODONT be daily used. The breath also, often unpleasant in life's decline, will continue pure, if this delightfully odorous tooth preservative is persistently applied.

The following gentlemen will be supported for the House by many conservative citizens. W. J. Garrett, W. M. Middlebrooks.

Do not buy any more "Poor Rubber Hose," but put your money in the "Spiral" Cotton Hose.

Lighter, cheaper and better than the best rubber hose.
Made on the same principle as the rubber-lined hose used in fire departments, which last for years. The cotton duck used in all rubber hose draws in water, wherever exposed, as a wick absorbs oil, and being confined by rubber generates a sulphurous gas, quickly destroying the best rubber hose. The "Spiral" Hose, having no outside covering to imprison the moisture, will dry like a towel.
There are imitations, so buy only that which has one red line running through it, and which is branded "Spiral," patented March 20, '83. If your dealer does not have it in stock, let him get it.
